TRAIL OF RUIN LEFT BY DEVASTATING GALES IN MELBOURNE

FIVE KILLED: 1,500 HOMELESS

Mrs. Dunbar proudly leads in the unbeaten Liberty Day (Mr. Proulx) after he had clipped four and four-fifths seconds off his own 1 1/4 miles record in the St. Andrew's Stakes yesterday.—(King's Studio).

30-HOUR RAINSTORM SWEEPS CITY
DAMAGE ESTIMATED TO BE AT LEAST £250,000
TERRIBLE TOLL OF STOCK

MELBOURNE, YESTERDAY.
 AN APPALLING TRAGEDY HAS SWEEPED MELBOURNE, BRINGING A HEAVY BURDEN OF SORROW TO THE THOUSANDS WHO ARE ASSEMBLED IN THE BEAUTIFUL CITY FOR THE CENTENARY CELEBRATIONS, AS THE RESULT OF THE WORST FLOODS IN THE HISTORY OF THE CITY.

Swept by devastating gales and rain for over 30 hours, the city to-day presented a terrible sight. Gay bunting and decorations, so enthusiastically admired by the vast throngs of visitors who have flocked to witness the celebrations, now lie bedraggled in the flooded streets down which float branches of the trees that line the now denuded boulevards.

Five people are already known to be dead, and it is feared that the death toll will be much higher by the time the floods recede and communication is established with the outlying districts.

Over 1,500 are homeless in the Melbourne area alone, while the damage is so far estimated at at least £250,000.

While the city itself presents a picture of desolation, with its Centenary decorations torn to shreds, conditions in the suburbs and outlying districts are even worse. Vast areas have been devastated and a tremendous number of domestic animals drowned.

AT GIPPSLAND ALONE, THOUSANDS OF SHEEP, CATTLE AND HORSES HAVE PERISHED, WHILE TRAINS ARE MAROONED.—REUTER.

CUSTOMS ORDER COUNTERMANDED IN KWANGTUNG

ONEROUS RULING RE SILVER MONEY

CONFISCATION STOPPED

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Canton, Yesterday.

Persons leaving Canton can carry $20 in silver coins without making Customs declaration, and any confiscation by the Customs of such an amount is not permitted.

This order is contained in the instructions of the Provincial Department of Finance to the Superintendent of Customs and the Bureau of Public Safety. According to a previous Customs notification, any person carrying $20 without making a Customs declaration was liable to be arrested.

The Provincial Department of Finance considered this ruling unjust, and many people who were not aware of the regulation lost their money through confiscation by the Customs.

The Customs authorities proclaimed the regulation in accordance with instructions from the Inspector-General of Customs.

'YOUNG MARSHAL' AT NANKING

Reassuring Report On Red Drive

Nanking, Yesterday.
 Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang arrived here to-day from Hankow at noon aboard the steamer Chang Hsing, accompanied by the Mayor of Tsingtao, Mr. Shen Hung-ih, General Wang Yi-chieh, and others.

Questioned regarding the progress of the anti-Red campaign in the territory under his administration, Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang said that the areas eastward of the Peiping-Hankow Railway had been cleared of Communists. Only isolated bands were still operating to the west of the railways.

Marshal Chang is remaining here until the conclusion of the forthcoming Plenary Session of the Kuomintang and the Central Executive Committee.—Reuter.

DULL TRADING ON WALL STREET

Bank Failures Lowest For 14 Years

DIVIDENDS SOARING

SPECIAL TO SUNDAY HERALD.
 (By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894, Received December 1, 12.25 a.m.)

New York, Yesterday.
 Brokers expect market inactivity because many traders are on holiday until Monday.

Favourable factors to-day were that the Federal Reserve Board reported that 1934 bank failures totalled 57, the lowest figure since 1920, and that November dividend declarations amounted to U.S.$347,246,162, as against U.S.$261,966,917 in November last year. It was the largest payment since February, 1932.

Unfavourable factors were the car loading decline, which was more than seasonal, and that the Federation of labour estimated that there were 10,671,000 unemployed in October, as against 10,122,000 in October last year.—United Press per S. E. Levy and Company.

BANK RUMOURS UNFOUNDED

Stability Doubts Discounted In Shanghai

Shanghai, Yesterday.
 The Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank here, interviewed by Reuter, to-day branded as "quite unfounded" the rumours concerning the Bank's stability.

The shortage of cash at some agencies is purely temporary, due to the restrictions imposed by the Chinese Government on the remittance of silver dollars from Shanghai to outposts, which are interfering with the seasonal up-country demand for money to finance export trade.

Everything is being done to overcome the difficulty as soon as possible, officials state.—Reuter.

JAPANESE PLAN DECLINED

France To Stand By Naval Treaty

Tokyo, Yesterday.
 Newspapers here report that the French Ambassador, under instructions from his home Government, called on the Japanese Foreign Minister, Mr. Koki Hirota, this morning to inform him that France declined to accept the Japanese proposal for joint denunciation of the Washington Naval Treaty.—Reuter.

200,000,000 YEN TANNA TUNNEL OPENED

Japanese Railway Service Shortened By 20 Minutes

Tokyo, Yesterday.

The railway service between Tokyo and Kobe has been shortened by 20 minutes with the opening to-day of traffic of the Tanna tunnel, which took 10 years to construct at a cost of 200,000,000 yen.

The tunnel is Japan's second longest, and represents the most ambitious undertaking in the history of Japanese railways.—Reuter.

RED MENACE IN WUCHOW REGION NOW DISPELLED

KWANGSI TROOPS VICTORIOUS

SCARE REPORTS DENIED

(From Our Own Correspondent)
 Canton, Yesterday.

The danger to Wuchow has now passed in consequence of the counter-attack of the Kwangsi troops against the Communists and Kuan-yang, although the Reds are still along the Hunan-Kwangsi border, it was learned to-day.

A local official report, denied that Holsien, 60 miles above Wuchow, had ever been captured by the Reds although this report was circulated in all Hong Kong Chinese newspapers. As there are no "war" correspondents at the front, the only information received is from military dispatches and independent accounts which are not always authentic.

The Canton military authorities are sending more troops to the Kwangsi borders via the west River, in case the Reds make another attempt to drive down on Wuchow.

It seems certain, however, the Communists have no intention of lingering in Kwangsi, and will proceed to Kweichow and Szechuen as soon as they have looted sufficient foodstuffs and clothing from the Kwangsi towns.

Chuenchow, a town in north-eastern Kwangsi, is reported to have been occupied by the Hunan provincial troops who drove out Communists. The Hunan troops the Communists. The Hunan troops western parts of the province.

Kwangtung troops are still located at Lianshan and Chihao in Southern Hunan. A section is pursuing the Communists at Taoh-shan, which is farther west.

ANTI-RED CAMPAIGN IN KWEICHOW

Preparations Rushed For Big Drive

Canton, Yesterday.

A telegram was received here yesterday from General Wang Chah-ih, Chairman of the Kweichow Provincial government, reporting the developments of the anti-Red campaign in Kweichow.

According to the telegram, preparations for a drive against the Reds are being rushed and he will proceed to Tsiens-yuen to direct operations in a few days.

It is also stated in the telegram that General Yiao Kwok-tai has been instructed to direct troops to Tsiens-yuen to envelop the bandits.—Central Press.

SHUT WINDOWS 1880

By ELINOR MORDAUNT

It began on their wedding journey: upon their wedding night, indeed, to be exact.
In their private sitting-room, repellent as all hotel sitting-rooms are, she shivered, and he fetched her a scarf for her shoulders; fumbling in the tray of her immense, half-unpacked box; with the softness and scent of her manifold possessions—velvet, ri-bonds, lace, scarf, the large handkerchief-satchel of blue satin pointed with pink roses—like wine in his already throbbing head; not so much as daring to throw across it; half-shocked, half-scared at the sight of his own figure, so clumsy and masculine, in the long mirror of the wardrobe door, which stood a little open, showing the dresses already unpacked and hanging there.

She ought to have been warm enough, with the wide lace scarf and his arms about her, but—perhaps it was fatigue, the peculiar aspect of chilliness which hung about the room like the ghost of manifold disappointments, for it was a regularized haunt of honeymoon couple—she shivered again, and he shut the window, shutting out the balmy summer air, the summer scents, which had already seemed so far removed from the over-furnished room; and in a moment it was stuffy, so stuffy that his head seemed to swell to bursting point.

It did not even occur to him to ask whether she was accustomed to sleep with her window open, for he was a sailor, with no idea of night; unless it were on account anyone shutting a window at of high seas, and here there was nothing more than a gentle sighing among the tree-tops.

He was a long while getting to sleep, half afraid to stir, she was small, so almost incredibly fair and fragile; but when he did drop off, he slept heavily, while she, stirring from her first light slumber, lay awake.

Her side of the bed was nearest to the window; the air was damp;
she was sure of that, because it was Devonshire, and Devonshire air is always damp. Little trickles of cold ran down her spine as she thought of it. She put her hand to her throat; it was beginning to tickle. How dreadful it would be if she had a sore throat, disfiguring cold in her head, next day.
She wondered if it would be possible to get up and close the window without waking Richard, and bent over him, gazing at him in the moonlight. How handsome he looked! How strange it was to have him there, sleeping so quietly at her side!

How strange—or was it a sort of insensitiveness?—that he should be able to sleep, loving her as he did, as he had sworn that he did, while she was awake: shivering, perished with cold!

She fidgeted about, pulling the blanket up about her shoulders, jerked it a little, hoping that he would awake; for she was scared of getting up to shut the window, shy of him seeing her in her night-dress—up to her neck, down to her feet, as it was.

Quite suddenly she gave it up;
after all, it was a wife's place to suffer in silence. The doctor had always said that her lungs were delicate; her mother spoke, with a sort of pride, of "Caroline's dreadful colds"—but this was married life, and men didn't care, no good pretending they did, anyhow, not like mothers.

Some curious perversity—over-strung as she was—prompted her to sit up in bed, nothing but her nightdress over her shoulders, fine longcloth and open Swiss embroidery, backed with pink gingham. If she got ill and died, Richard would be sorry; she saw him as a young widower, with a black band round his uniformed arm; and, filled with pity for him, bent a little lower. How nicely his hair curled; not in the least like a woman's, so crisply, she sneezed; her self-pity lost in compunction as he woke and turned to her, with wide, startled eyes:
"My darling, my darling, what is it?"

"Nothing, nothing. S-s-s! I were awake! What a brute I am!
What is it, my precious? Are you cold? There's a rug on the sofa—or would you like your dressing-gown? Carry, you're actually shivering! What can I do for you?"

"It's nothing—nothing—but..."
"What? What is it?"

"Perhaps—I think I must have a little cold; but—I don't want to be dear, perhaps the night air—it is fussy or tiresome, only—Dick damp, you know. Everyone says that's the worst of Devonshire;
it's so damp."

He was out of bed in a moment, shut the window and laid her dressing-gown over her; lay awake long after she was asleep, full of self-reproach and foreboding.
What was it her mother had said,
almost at the last moment? "You must take great care of my darling Carry; she's not one of those great robust women, you know.
Sometimes I've wondered if I am right to let her marry at all. Her lungs, you know—nothing actually wrong, but still..."

And after this, to allow her to catch cold the very first evening upon which he was responsible for her! What sort of a fellow was he?—A dense, clumsy fool; no doubt about that; not fit to be trusted with such a girl.

The close atmosphere was like a blanket across his face, and as dawn broke he slipped out of bed and into his dressing-room, where he leant out of the open window, drawing in long breaths of the moist, scented air.

She was right about the damp, poor little Carry! Why, it lay like a sea beneath him, the upper layer —with the old-tops emerging from it like immense three-deckers afloat on a calm sea—shot with gold. Damp, unmistakably damp, though he had never actually thought of it like that before; and, anyhow, by Jove, how good it smelt!

After all, she was quite well next day; not so much as the hint of a cold; and it was wonderful how much she could do—she who looked as though a feather might blow her away.

When they went back to London to spend the last few days of his leave, before depositing her in her mother's care, it was almost unbearably hot; a heavy, thundery heat. Mrs. Blackie exasperated him. She did not think Carry was looking quite so well as she expected; made him feel like a brute.
And one night he had it out with his wife; got up and opened the window, and was very firm about it. "All that you want is more fresh air." That's what he said;
and, turning over on his side, slept
as he had not done for weeks;
slept, thought the heavy air broke in a thunderstorm, wind and rain driving into the room, soaking the lace curtains, lying in a pool upon the floor.

Next day Carry had a cold, which developed into a cough, and he was frightened out of his wits, felt like a murderer; would have given his right hand to have undone what was done. Mrs. Blackie came to stay and nurse her daughter. The cramped lodgings seemed full of her: her bustle and panniers and flying ribbons, high-piled hair, high cheekbones, high colour, effusive affection; the rattle of her chateleine; the smell of hot fannel; the deadly-sweet odour of linseed, medicine bottles, and spoons, beef-tea and gruel; something for ever warming on the sitting-room hob, something ailing in front of it. The rattle of words, like the report of musketry, shot off upon every occasion.

Caroline's room was away at the end of the passage, but he could never forget the horror upon Mrs.
Blackie's face when she came into the sitting-room one day and found that he had open the window; her "Richard! Oh, Richard! But of course you didn't think—men don't think. But that poor child; The faintest breath of air—any fresh child—and of course when anyone opens the bedroom door—" etc., etc.

Caroline pulled through; she never told her mother of that open window on the night of the storm. At first her husband was grateful; then he began to have a feeling as though she took an unfair advantage over him by her silence, holding it against him.

The memory of that one night lived with them, came between them: something in the very atmosphere of the house made it impossible ever to forget anything.
Carry had only to draw her shoulders together and say: "You see,
Dick, I don't think I am, perhaps, quite so strong since that illness—do you remember?—just after we were first married," and he was done for, down in the dust.

White Straw Hats

LAST year's white straw hat often shows a faint brown tinge in comparison with the new season's models. This is due to frequent exposure to sunshine. The original whiteness can be restored by scrubbing the straw with a nailbrush dipped in half a pint of tepid water to which a teaspoonful of oxalic acid has been added. If a shiny appearance is desired, brush the hat evenly with the white of an egg.

LUCKY NUMBERS FOR DECORATIONS

London. THE lucky number is coming into its own again. Walking about town, lunching in restaurants or dining in one's club one is aware of the striking prominence of numerals. Lucky numbers—one's own particular or somebody else's—seen to leap forth from all kinds of odd places. They form metal decorations on handbags; they are cut into bangles; clipped into velvet caps.

We shall see them soon embroidered on handkerchiefs, scarves and underwear. We shall, perhaps, be able to distinguish our hosts of acquaintances soon, not by their names, but their Lucky Numbers.

Streamlined Frocks For Slim Women

FAIR COLOURING

BLACK cannot be excelled for fair colouring, and blondes cannot do better than wear either black or white.

TYPICAL EDWARDIAN REVIVAL

THE fashion of the decorative evening blouse, one of the most typical revivals from the Edwardian era, is seen in white and silver crepe with fringe to match.

Dark Coats Worn With Coloured Dresses

London. THE newest frocks, like the newest cars, are streamlined. The fashion suits the tall, slender woman, whether expressed in a neat day dress or elegant evening gown such as those which Elspeth Fox Pitt makes in her new salons at 52, Manchester-street, Manchester-square.

Until winter comes the most practical, as well as the smartest, wrap is a short cape.

The seal musquash is a snappy finish to an autumn frock fastened all down the front with prismatic buttons and with long cuffs of fur to match the cape. Only a slim woman could wear, too, the wide belt. It is of bright green suede and has novel chromium fastenings.

Dark Coats

Dark coats are worn with coloured dresses. Elspeth Fox Pitt shows one of black material flecked with cellophane.

It has a deep cape-like collar of Persian lamb with cuffs to match and could do duty with several frocks. It looks especially well with a dress of emerald green marocain flecked with gold.

It looks equally well with a tailored frock of suede-finished black wool material. With it goes a narrow white pique cravat and a novel-plaited belt of shiny raspberry red leather with a gold buckle.

The long line is stressed again at 52, Manchester-street in an evening dress of dull apricot-coloured crepe with the new wide rudder seam down the back. A bodice is cleverly draped in front but is almost non-existent at the back.

WASHING SILK STOCKINGS

WASH silk stockings before they have been worn and after each time of wearing. This is true economy. Gently squeeze the silks through them, and avoid any rubbing. Rinse thoroughly in lukewarm water. Roll in a towel, squeeze well, and hang up by the toes. Dry away from direct heat, and never iron.

RE-COVERING AN EIDERDOWN

PUT a frill along each side of the eiderdown, and insert dressmakers' lead weights in the corners and middle of the frills to prevent the re-covering of an eiderdown with silk from slipping off the bed.

A New Metal Fabric

London. A NEW metal fabric has arrived for evening wear which is particularly suitable for toning into the dress ensemble. It is patterned in large checks which look like metal chips. This material is being allied with black suede, satin and velvet to make the latest product in handbags. These are long and adorned with bold initials of the glittering metal fabric, which is used equally well for flower, belt, bracelet and spectacle case.

A MOROCCO HANDBAG

HANDBAGS which are made of morocco leather are inclined to fade after they have been in regular use for a time. The leather can be revived well by the following treatment. Separate the yolk from the white of an egg and beat the white a little. Dip a pad of cotton wool in the white and apply to the morocco leather. Sponge liberally and leave for some hours. Finally polish leather with furniture cream, using only a little cream for the purpose.

"REMBRANDT" BERETS FOR LONDON WOMEN

London. LONDON has gone Tyrolean or Basque. Nearly every woman to-day is wearing one of the "Rembrandt" berets, worn as the peasants of the Pays Basque wear them, pulled right forward over the forehead.

Those that were not, wore one of the Tyrolean hats, made popular by Princess Marina. Very smart they are too.

Furnishings From Fairyland

Snow Queen Bedroom—The Ice Maiden's Mirror

(By Mrs. Gordon-Stables)

London.

THERE is a touch of Hans Andersen about the latest decorative effects contrived by means of glass, mirrors and otherwise.

The cool loveliness of the Snow Queen, for instance, is evoked in a bedroom, of which the bed-ends are of looking-glass panels, etched with wintry tree-forms, the spread of white corduroy, and the covers, worn by the pillows by day, adorned with the pelt of a white hare apiece.

The dressing-table, petticoated in silvered American cloth, uses the same fabric beneath a top of plain glass to create the illusion of silvered glass.

The rimless mirror wears in accordance with to-day's vogue a flat and formal fold of silver tissue across its right-hand top corner. Before just such an arrangement must the Ice Maiden once upon a time, not yet awakened to the glow time have surveyed the fair sea of life and love.

When the Lady of the Briar Rose was awakened from her long sleep by the kiss of the Fairy Prince, did she perhaps warm her hands and her heart at a fireside, framed in blush-pink, looking-glass, without one touch of metal to tell of its mundane manufacture? In this year of grace mere mortals may acquire fittings of this fairy-tale order in standard measurements so that we, who never set a foot within fairyland, may conceal beneath their poetic proportions the prosaic ironwork that the builder left behind him.

When Paolo had finished reading to Francesca, and "that day the lovers read no more," did he not perhaps replace the fatal volume within one of those hoop-troughs of clear moss-green glass that speak of elves dancing in the moonlight around a magic ring?

And did not Cinderella at the Court Ball watch the hands point to midnight on a clock of amber glass with its works concealed so artfully behind its back that the

ALTERNATIVE TO COLLARLESS COAT

If you do not prefer to have a fur collar on your winter coat, you can have a collarless coat with a round neck, and your dress made with a soft, high turnover collar which can be worn outside the coat. A little vest consisting of front and high collar can also be worn with a dress having a lower décolletage.

BUTTER AND SANDWICHES

WHEN a large number of sandwiches are required the butter will go twice as far if each quarter of a pound is well beaten up with half a cupful of milk. Incidentally, the butter will be made much easier to spread, especially in cold weather when warm milk may be used to melt the butter.

Fairies themselves might be charged with the due guidance of the pointers to the tiny chromium figures in its rim?

Now that such trappings are within human grasp, may we not all live in Wonderland?

CLASSICAL MANNEQUINS

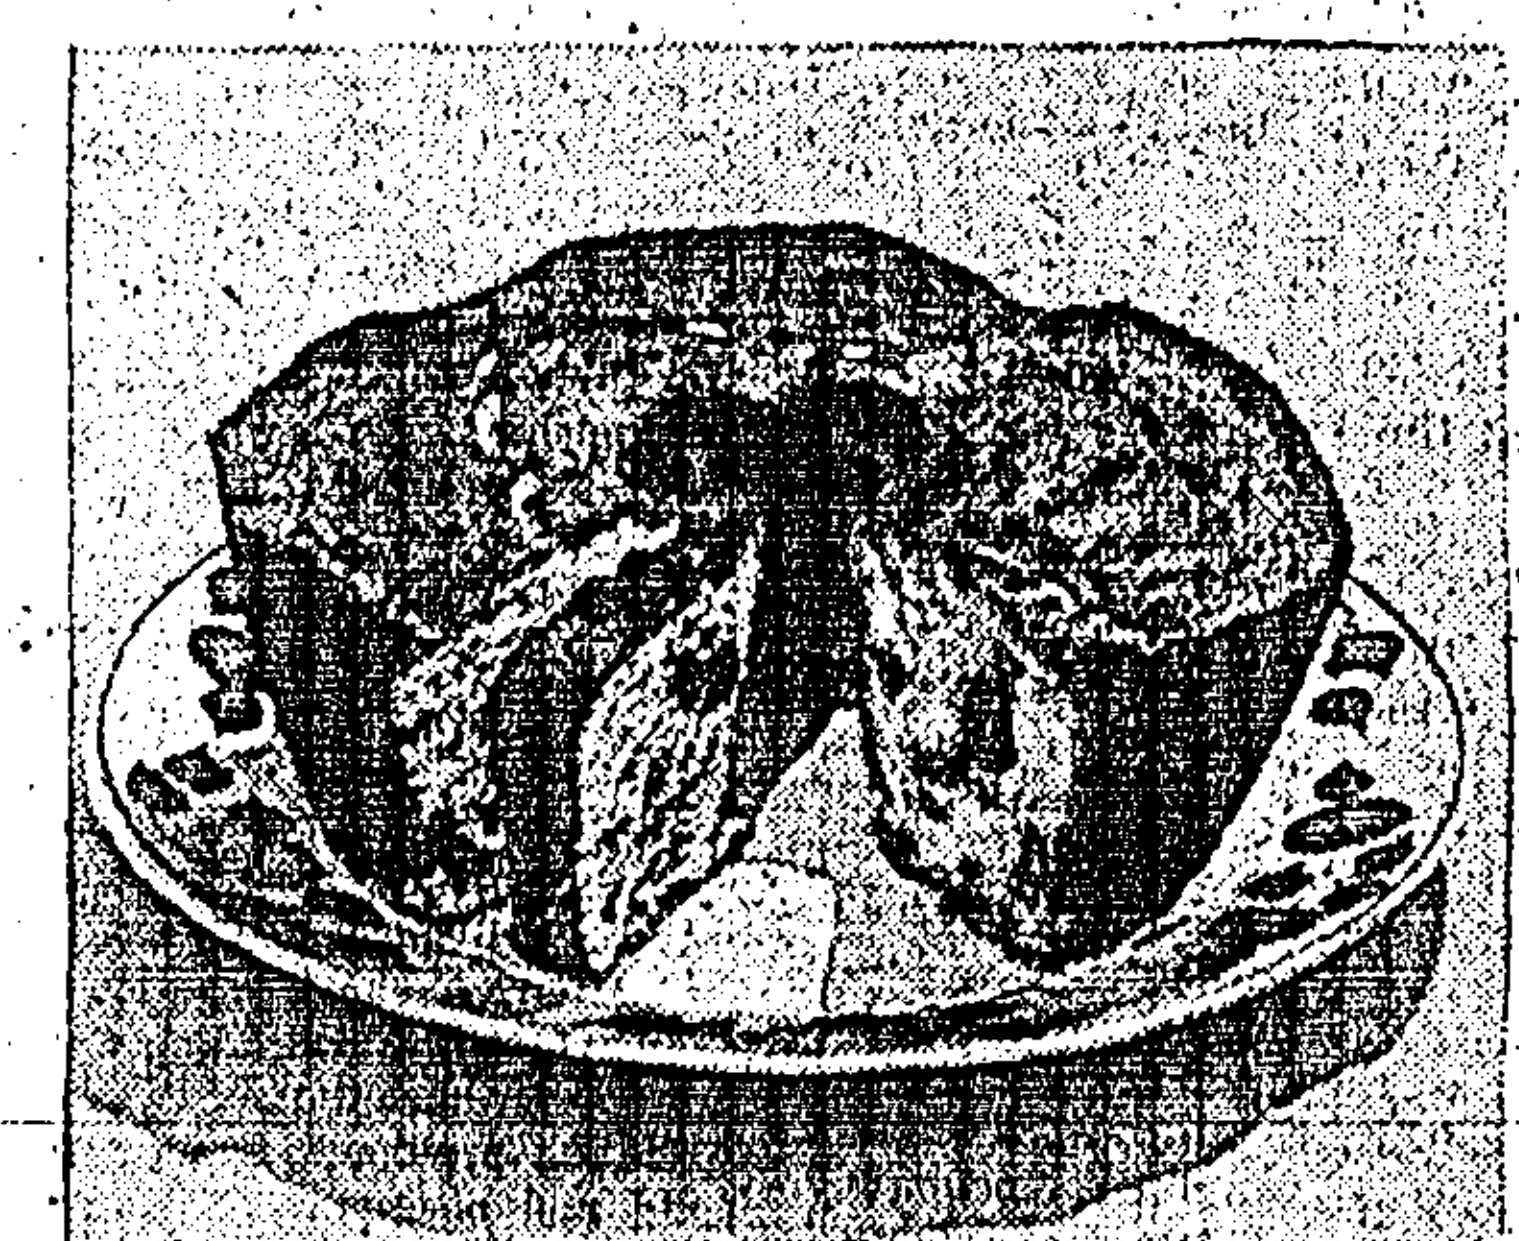

London.

MODERNIST shop window mannequins with triangular features and lips made up with green or brick red rouge, to match the costumes displayed, have new rivals.

These are the figures modelled like Grecian goddesses, in ivory and stone-colour. Obviously inspired by classical imagery, Juno, Diana, and the three Graces, these

"sculpture" models do not, curiously enough, look at all out of place in the latest Parisian creations for the evening.

Cleverly posed, in the brightest of artificial lighting, they manage to convey all the beauty of the old-world classics in that most modern of settings—a West-end shop window.

CLUB SURPRISE NAVY IN KEEN RUGBY ENCOUNTER

FORWARDS GIVE STERLING DISPLAY AGAINST HEAVIER PACK

LAMMERT SCORES CHARACTERISTIC TRY

BRILLIANT play by the forwards with excellent support from the backs, resulted in the surprise defeat of the strong Navy fifteen by the Club, who won by two tries and two penalty goals (12 points) to a goal and a try (8 points) on the Club ground yesterday.

The Navy were without the services of Lt. Evans from the pack, while Lt. Miers, who formed a brilliant partnership with Forbes last season at half-back, was also an absentee, and will not be playing again owing to a badly damaged knee.

"Y" Ladies Lose By Lone Goal

MISSED CHANCES IN CAER CLARK CUP

Scoring the decider in the early stages of their Caer Clark Cup hockey match at King's Park yesterday, the St. Andrews Ladies defeated the "Y" Ladies by a goal to nil. The game, which was very scrappy at the start, improved towards the end, and was evenly contested throughout.

Miss P. Gittens, inside-left for St. Andrews, scored the only goal for her team with a well-timed angular shot.

The "Y" forwards, led by Miss P. McCaw, made many attacks, but were too erratic to get through the sound opposing defence of Miss Jorgie and Miss White.

On one occasion when they managed to get through Miss McCaw had hard luck when her swift ground shot went just wide. Miss J. Wilson, at right-back, was the pick of the "Y" defence, timing and placing her clearances well.

Miss George Good. Although the intermediate line played well together, Miss George, in goal, had plenty of work to do, though she never became flustered at the numerous shots which came her way.

Miss F. Wong, on the right wing, was seen in many fine solo runs and also centred with great accuracy.

Miss I. Woolley cleared well and saved her side on many occasions by falling back as a third back.

TWO KOWLOON JUNIORS SENT OFF FIELD AGAINST S. CHINA

STRONG NAVY TEAM DISAPPOINT IN ENCOUNTER WITH EASTERN

LINCOLNS RETAIN 100 PER CENT.

THE Lincolns were fully extended in their First Division encounter with Kowloon yesterday, and were given a fright when the mainland team secured an early lead.

Bustling play in the second half saw the Lincolns obtain the upper hand, however, but they only secured both points as the result of a late goal.

In the Second Division, frayed tempers were again responsible for several nasty incidents, and in the South China and Kowloon clash on the Railway ground, two of Kowloon's players were given marching orders.

The Navy did not fare too well against the Eastern, though they scored three goals without reply, while the Artillery failed to stop the "rot" against the Lincolns.

The R.A.O.C. overwhelmed the the Railway in their Third Division fixture which produced 9 goals, while the Radio had the better of the Recreio.

Owing to an unknown reason, the goal-posts and nets for the Air Force and Police Third Division encounter at Happy Valley, were not put up, and the game was unavoidably postponed.

LINCOLNS' CLOSE CALL AT KOWLOON

BOYES GIVES HIS BEST PLAY

The Lincolns were slightly better than Kowloon yesterday in their First Division encounter, when, after a very close game between two evenly matched sides, the soldiers ran out winners by the 2 goals to 1.

At times, particularly during the first half, the Lincolns dominated play and on these occasions matters did not look promising for Kowloon; however, Boyes played a wonderful game in goal and kept the attack out until Kowloon eased the situation by breaking away to score their first goal.

Kowloon held their lead until half-time.

Boyes Out-landing Kowloon were well served in Boyes—he was the man of the game. Cord, on his best form, has rarely played superior football than that played by Boyes yesterday.

His anticipation was uncanny, and time and again he ran to the border line of his area to collect a ball when the majority of goalkeepers would have stayed between the sticks watching events.

Erratic Kicking Everest and Willis stopped rushes very effectively, but their kicking was erratic; and they seldom cleared cleanly, making no attempt to establish contact with a player upheld.

The half-backs worked very hard, Gilchrist making a very useful third back, a much needed quantity in the first half.

The forwards played very well, their combination being excellent and when an opportunity was offered they swept down the field en bloc.

The White brothers were good, but the honours go to Knox, a very speedy winger, who was on top form yesterday and who gave the veteran Ash a great deal of trouble.

Knox's passes to the centre were very accurate and well placed, and he fills Blake's place excellently.

Lincolns' Poor Finish There was something lacking in the Lincolns' forward line. They combined very well, and they were seldom far from shooting range, but they could not get the goals.

The first half consisted of little else save the Lincolns shooting in at goal, but they failed to score.

Individually there was little wrong, and English and Ridley combined excellently. Higgins at centre-forward was up to scratch, and he was always on the spot when an opening appeared, but he invariably shot into Boyes' hands.

Mathews and Malpas, on the other wing, played well, Mathews sending across some very fine efforts from the wing which should have materialised.

Meaken Unruffled Meaken's busy moments were in the second half when he had quite a lot of work to do, but he was never lacking and saved some very good shots. The backs left nothing to be desired; Ash played a great game and was well supported by Edmundson, both clearing well and in contrast to the Kowloon defence, their clearances were always purposeful—there was always someone there to meet the ball.

Dudley played a fine game at centre-half and kept his forwards well fed; he kept a watchful eye on G. White. Robson was an excellent defender, and when Kowloon became aggressive he fell back to assist the defence.

Lincolns Force Pace From the commencement, the Lincolns swept into Kowloon's area and gave them an anxious time. A timely save and clearance by Boyes sent Knox away into an undefended field; he directed a fine shot from the wing which Meaken punched out for G. White to receive and score in the bottom, left-hand corner. Following this goal, the Lincolns came to the fore when Ridley had had luck with a shot which went over the bar. A moment later the same player just missed with a very fine header which hit the bar and rebounded for Everest to clear.

The soldiers continued pressing and Ridley again suffered bad luck when he deflected a fine centre from a corner kick into Boyes' hands. Despite their persistent efforts, the Lincolns failed to equalise and the interval arrived with Kowloon in the lead.

Tables-Turned Kowloon were a different team after the interval, and the run of the play was somewhat reversed, the Lincolns having a very anxious time for some minutes.

Soon after the resumption G. White sent in a drive which Meaken just managed to reach and punch upwards, White again had the ball on its descent and Meaken had to dive full length to prevent the ball entering the net.

Accurate Passing Towards the middle of the second half, the soldiers equalised through Higgins, who scored a great goal after receiving from English. A few minutes later, from the centre kick, Ridley ran through to score the winning goal. Higgins missed a glorious opportunity just before time when he kicked the ball from 3 yards range.

Lincolns—Meaken; Ash, Edmundson; Thompson, Dudley, Robson; Mathews; Malpas, Higgins, Ridley and English. Kowloon—Boyes; Everest, Willis; Gilchrist, Bliss, Eastman; Lee, Ellis, White, G., White, V., and Knox.

PREMIER LEAGUE MATCH

The Indian Recreation Club collapsed sensationally against the slow bowling of G. R. Sayer (6 for 43) yesterday at the Valley, and the Civil Service, aided by the slow scoring, were able to force a draw in their premier league match.

The Indians were weakened by the absence of A. H. Madar, who has left the Colony, and F. D. Pereira, their interport fast bowler.

TIME-LIMIT CRICKET IN BANGKOK

Two Hours' Batting By Each Side

Bangkok, Nov. 17.

Cricket for some reason or other has never been really popular in Bangkok, and the Siamese players through many years could be counted on the fingers of one hand.

This lack of interest was seen in the poor attendance at the annual meeting of the cricket section of the Sports Club last evening.

Mr. A. L. B. Perkins, a former well-known player over the border, was elected captain.

After a long discussion it was decided that the first match of the season be played to a time-limit from nine o'clock to one-thirty, each side to bat for two hours; if the result was satisfactory it might be repeated. The motion was carried by a majority.

THE PROBLEM OF THE SAAR

France Has No Desire
To Take Action
But Will Not Hesitate If Called Upon

(By Brig-Gen. E. L. Spears, M. P.)

London. The atmosphere in Paris these days is not an optimistic one. In comparison with the French we in England might be light-hearted Neapolitans or carefree Hawaiians treading a sunlit and easy path, whereas they go their way full of forebodings and apprehensions. Quite extraordinary, this difference in the way two nations, geographically so close, face the future. The mental despondency of our neighbours across the Channel is reflected in many ways. For instance, no Frenchman will lend, except on short term and at high interest, for none feel secure. Twenty-five milliards of francs in currency notes are being hoarded, and vast sums in gold are lying idle in the vaults of the banks. I have just returned from a short visit to Paris, in the course of which I met many distinguished persons, amongst them that admirable little man, Gaston Doumergue, the Prime Minister, who before his recent resignation, set himself the task of reforming the French Constitution and saving France from such events as darkened her history last February, when she seemed to tremble on the brink of civil war.

Lack of Confidence

Serious as are France's internal problems, however, I found them overshadowed by events beyond her frontiers. The fear of what Germany may do next prevents men developing their business or envisaging the future with any confidence. One problem in particular is occupying the minds of persons in authority and causing them increasing anxiety, and that is the Saar.

The territory of the Saar, comprising about 740 square miles and some 770,000 inhabitants, was by the Treaty of Versailles placed under the care of the League of Nations, which administers it through a Commission whose head is now a most capable Englishman, Mr. Knox. The Saar mines were given to France by the treaty as compensation for the destruction of her own mines by the German army during the war.

Plebiscite in the Saar. Next month the Saarlanders will have to vote as to whether they wish their territory to be annexed to France, to Germany, or to remain under the League. All this is well known, as is the fact that the people of the Saar are overwhelmingly German.

What is perhaps less well known is that the very last thing France wishes is that the Saar should vote for annexation to herself. She knows too well the cost of attempting to rule an alien people. But on this score she does not, nor need she, worry. There is not the remotest chance of the Saarlanders taking any such decision. Their choice lies between the other two alternatives.

In ordinary times the result would not be in question. They would vote in overwhelming numbers for reunion with Germany.

But the advent of Hitlerism has altered the situation, and cast some doubts on the issue. Communists, Socialists, and Jews get no inspiration from the Swastika, and the remainder of the population, Catholic in religion, may well feel grave doubts concerning the religious liberty they would enjoy under the Führer's Government.

No Outside Interference. Well-informed circles in France think that, in spite of the extraordinary efforts and doubtful methods Germany is employing to secure support, as much as one-third of the population may vote against a return to Germany under present conditions.

The remaining two-thirds—which may be called the Catholic vote, since it consists of those whose decision will not be influenced by political considerations such as Socialism—can be divided roughly into two halves, one of which will vote for Germany whatever happens, and the other looking for guidance to its spiritual leader. What this amounts to is to say that the Vatican will be the casting vote. France is determined that no outside interference shall prevent the population making its own choice. Under no circumstances will she act otherwise than according to the strict letter of the law; she will not intervene in the territory unless called upon to do so by the Governing Commission. This could happen if armed bands invaded the territory or order could not be maintained by the League gendarmes.

But one thing she has made clear, and that is that, whilst hoping the necessity will not arise, France will not hesitate for a moment to act if called upon to do so. Let the Governing Commission make a sign in the morning, and French troops will occupy the territory in the afternoon.

The Peril After The Vote. So much for pre-plebiscite days. It is devoutly to be hoped that Germany will manage to keep under control the voting is over those people whose passions she has roused to fever heat over the Saar. The real difficulties will arise when the result of the plebiscite is known. The League of Nations may be tested then as it has never been tested before.

France feels that the different contingencies should be foreseen and provided for now. If the Saar votes either wholly or in part for the status quo, it will be comparatively plain sailing.

It will be the duty of the League to see that the will of the majority is respected. But is it fair to ask the Saarlanders to vote to live under the governance of the League for ever? Surely these Germans should be told that one day they may, should they so wish, return to their motherland.

To fix a definite date for another plebiscite would contravene the legal clauses of the Treaty; but what would surely be possible would be to make it clear that if the Saarlanders vote for the status quo next month in due course the Saar Government, which would certainly have developed on a democratic basis in the meantime, would be at liberty to dispose of the territory as it wished.

This would probably be the happiest solution as well as the least dangerous. It would also have the advantage from the point of view of the Saarlanders that should they vote for the status quo France would cede them the mines on very advantageous terms.

But what if, as it after all most likely, the Saar votes for immediate reversion to Germany? Is the territory to be handed over to Hitler's Reich immediately?

The Nazis marching in would certainly come into violent conflict with some 50,000 men who would fight. Such a thing should not even be contemplated.

Weeks, even months perhaps, should be given to those who wish to do so to go. Europe cannot allow thousands of people to be compelled either to dash over the frontiers as did the Belgian refugees before the German Armies, or to fight. A time limit before the territory will be handed over should be fixed now.

Purchase Of The Mines

The most important question to be settled is that of the mines, which are the property of the French State whatever the nationality of the territory. Under the Peace Treaty, Germany must buy these back at a price to be fixed in gold, and a settlement must be arrived at within a year.

France is determined not to lose the price of these mines, and is inclined to think that if once the territory is in German hands she might experience some difficulty in obtaining her due. How is this problem to be solved?

There is an enormous sum of French money in circulation in the Saar, not less than a milliard francs perhaps even a milliard and a half. There would, therefore, be no obstacle to transferring the amount agreed upon as the price of the mines, and there should even be enough to settle the debts contracted by the territory abroad. The usual objections raised by Germany in the matter of transfers could not therefore be invoked in this case.

But the matter should be faced and settled in principle now. In fact, decisions should be taken on all matters not specifically laid down by Treaty, or which have arisen since it was drawn up.

Cool Heads and Calm Judgment To wait until after the voting would be to create a most dangerous state of affairs in a Europe where, no more than in a powder magazine, is it safe to throw lighted matches about.

Paris was, I found, acutely aware of how easily a critical situation might develop. The gravity of the problem ought to be understood here also.

It is particularly important that the people of this country should take a fair view, which they can only do if they are familiar with the facts. They can be relied upon to keep cool heads whatever happens, and cool heads and calm judgment may be very important factors in Europe next month.

GIVES QUICK AND SAFE RESULTS

Great Relief After 14 Years Suffering

2 Thomas St., Lewisham, N.S.W.

Dear Sirs,

I have been suffering from Rheumatoid Arthritis for 14 years. I have taken a course of your 'ASPRO' Tablets—three after each meal—and often, when in pain, have taken an extra dose before going to bed.

I obtained very great relief from this treatment; in fact, I do not know how I could have continued to move about without 'ASPRO'.

The pain has gradually improved, and now I find I need to take 'ASPRO' only occasionally. I can confidently recommend 'ASPRO' to all sufferers from rheumatism.

MANCHUKUO REFORM

Tokyo, Yesterday.
 Addressing the extra session of the Diet, yesterday, the Japanese Premier, Admiral Okada, announced that communal grain reserve storages would be established in every farming village in the northern provinces to provide against failures of crops, and also that definite action would be taken to control the price of rice on the recommendation of the Rice Policy Investigation Commission.

The Premier said that the Japanese delegates at the London naval talks were acting in pursuance of Japan's fixed policy, which aims at safeguarding the security of national defence, establishing a principle of non-menace and non-aggression among nations, and realising armament limitation through a most equitable and fair formula.
 Regarding the proposed reform of the Japanese administrative organs in the Three Eastern Provinces which had provoked opposition to Japanese police in Kwantung, the Premier said that the reforms would be executed with full respect to the independence of the so-called Manchukuo.

NEGRO "KING KONG" MURDERED

Among "Toughest" Men In New York
NEGRESS ADMITS CRIME

New York.
 Harlem's "King Kong"—a giant negro named Willie Smith—has been murdered.

He earned the title of "King Kong" because he stood 6ft. 8in.
 and weighed nearly 18 stone.

He is alleged to have been killed by a 25-year-old negress, named Mary Williams.

According to a police statement,
 she confessed to the crime, saying,
 "Sure, I killed him. He was no good." She has been arrested.

"King Kong," who was found dead in his flat, stabbed with his own knife, was considered by the police to be one of the "toughest" men to handle in the whole of New York. When he was wanted, they went after him, not alone, but in squads.

His fame as a fighter was great.
 Once, it is said, when 15 men banded together and challenged his fighting ability, he thrashed the lot of them single-handed.

The idea was that the fish would

The results have proved satis-

 catching fish are now full-sized.

MYSTERIOUS ATTACK

POLICE STATION SUBJECTED TO HAIL OF FIRE

Thrilling 15-Minute Episode

REVENUE OFFICER'S NARROW ESCAPE

A daring armed attack failed on Friday night when an unknown band of marauders unsuccessfully fired on a Chinese Revenue Officer at Sheung Shui and later stormed the Police Station.

It appears that at about 10 o'clock on Friday night a Chinese Revenue officer left his office and was proceeding down his garden path, with an electric torch in his hand, when three shots were fired at him from close range.

Escaping the hail of bullets,
 the Revenue Officer at once made for the Sheung Shui Police Station and had just gained the door when a hail of bullets, estimated at 15 rounds, struck the walls of the charge-room. These were followed by occasional stray shots.

Sub. Inspector H. E. Langley, who in charge of the Station at the time was fortunately not hit, and no casualties were reported.

The Emergency Unit was called out, but, despite a vigorous search of the neighbourhood, no signs of the assailants could be found.

The whole episode lasted for not more than a quarter of an hour.

DEAD MAN FOUND ON MAIN ROAD

Murder Suspected

What is probably the sequel to the attack on the Sheung Shui Police Station by armed desperadoes on Friday night, was revealed early yesterday morning, when the dead body of an unknown Chinese male, aged between 40 and 45, was found on the main road near the Sheung Shui Police Station, with a gunshot wound in the abdomen.

At first the Police suspected that the wound was self-inflicted, but subsequent inquiries and discoveries point to murder.

The Police are making a rigorous search of the neighbourhood and are hopeful of an early arrest. Up till late last night there had been no arrests.

LEFT HOSPITAL TO GIVE EVIDENCE

Sequel To Chopper Attack

SEAMAN SENT TO GAOL

"This is a very serious offence, you might have killed the man, and then you would hang," said Mr. E. W. Hamilton at Kong Tim, a 20-year-old seaman aboard the s.s. Kwong Nam, who was charged at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday with cutting and wounding Mak Kin, a 24-year-old fook employed at the Shamshui Ice Factory, Tung Chow Street, on November 9.

Detective-Sergeant Poyntz, of the Shamshui Police Station, stated that the defendant alleged that the complainant called him uncomplimentary names at the factory. A fight ensued during which the defendant picked up a chopper and struck the complainant on the arm.

Sentence of four months' hard labour to date from November 9, was imposed. The complainant had been in hospital ever since the day, and was only allowed out yesterday to attend court. He will return and stay in for about another fortnight.

Magisterial Praise

"You are one of the most honest witnesses I have met," said Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones to Chan Lin Fah, when he appeared at the Central Magistracy yesterday morning to give evidence against Li Wing, who was charged with the larceny of a fountain pen valued at $3.

Witness said that defendant was about eight feet away from him when he first noticed that his fountain pen was gone, and when arrested no pen was found in defendant's possession. He also admitted that the pen which was found by the police in the vicinity where the arrest was made, was not his pen.

Defendant pleaded that he lost his job owing to deafness, and had to do something to earn a livelihood.

CORRESPONDENCE

Maltreating Street Urchins

[To the Editor, "Sunday Herald."] Sir—I notice in your last issue of the Sunday Herald the Police refutation of the alleged kicking of a street urchin by an Indian constable.

Allow me to pull off the wool from the eyes of some of the kind hearted public by relating what I have observed.

Alighting from the Repulse Bay bus at Murray Barracks I saw two street urchins starting a fight, which appeared realistic, and almost immediately one started crying and displaying a tear on his coat, claiming damages. The scene was so pathetic that a British Army Officer felt pity and gave him a few cents.

After 5 days I noticed the same trick at the same place by the same urchins with the same tear.

What clever brains we have here. The Police have a Herculean job to keep us tranquil and

HONG KONG AND THE NEW TERRITORIES. — No. 132.

A New District

As a change from the attractive Lam Tuen Valley we visited a new district on our last excursion into the New Territories. The district chosen was the fertile valley to the south of the Sha-tau-kok road about two miles from Fanling i.e., 22 miles by road from Kowloon. The first wood, very near the road, proved of considerable interest because of the large number of Blackbirds it contained, between thirty and fifty in all probability. They were extremely shy and when disturbed would fly from the ground to the top of a high banian or camphor tree and there disappear in a mysterious manner. As they are irregular in their feeding habits when one was disturbed others, in the manner, took to their wings. We can quite easily understand now the king's astonishment when on opening the pie, four and twenty Blackbirds emerged and flew out in all directions. Only one other wood visited contained blackbirds and in the centre of that wood was a very large banian tree. This tree must have formed the regular roosting place for a flock of these birds for the ground beneath was white with their droppings. A few specimens of the Grey-backed Thrush were seen in three woods.

The afternoon was a good one for we identified thirty species of birds besides seeing two other which remained unnamed. One of these was very likely a Nightjar. The birds of prey included Kite, Buzzard and Sparrow Hawk; the small birds included White-eye, Chinese Spotted Munia, Japanese Robin Flycatcher, Stonechat and Tailor-bird. The district over which we walked for some hours was one of the most beautiful we have visited in the New Territories presenting a great variety of scenery.

Two snakes were noticed. A yellow headed snake, Natrix stolata, swam across a small pond just below us and not far away a water snake, Natrix piscator, was sunning itself on a grassy bank. The writer picked up the latter by its middle and it promptly turned its head round and bit his finger so was punished by being thrown into a stream. But all snakes swim with ease and this one swam away and soon disappeared.

Butterflies were present in great abundance and we were tempted, so invigorating was the air, to leave the gentle task of bird watching for the more strenuous activity of chasing Swallow-tails.

The Japanese Buzzard

The Buzzard that visits the Colony during the winter months is the Japanese Buzzard, Buteo buteo burmanicus Oates. It may be seen on almost any day both on Hong Kong Island and in the Territories. It can be recognised in the air quite easily. From a Kite it can be distinguished by its slightly smaller size, rounded wings, rounded tail (compared with the forked tail of a Kite) and much paler lower plumage. From a Sparrow Hawk it can be distinguished by its much larger size and by its habit of soaring. The lower surface is very pale except for a conspicuous dark patch on each wing, this feature and the wide-spread rounded tail make identification easy. This year the Buzzards were late in arriving, we saw no birds before November.

LAND TAX CHANGE IN CANTON

Assessment According To July Rents

Canton, yesterday. In view of the decrease in the value of lands in this city as a result of the world business depression, the Municipal Land Bureau, in order to lighten the burden of land owners, is considering the reduction of land tax which was fixed according to the house rents prevailing in the first month of 1933.

It is learned that the Bureau is going to fix the land tax for next year with rents prevailing in July of this year as the standard of assessment.—Central Press.

THE LOCAL DOLLAR SITUATION

THE GREAT QUESTION WE HAVE TO FACE TO-DAY IS WHAT IS THE DOLLAR GOING TO DO?

A LOCAL BROKER SPEAKING THROUGH HIS MOUSTACHE SAID, HE WAS SURE IT WOULD GO UP, BUT ON THE OTHER HAND THERE WAS A TENDENCY FOR IT TO DROP — HE'S PROBABLY RIGHT.

ONE OF OUR LOCAL REFUSE DESTRUCTORS SAID HE REALLY WASN'T INTERESTED. HE ALWAYS GOT THE SAME NUMBER AT THE END OF THE MONTH.

A BANK OFFICIAL SPEAKING WITH A RICH THOUSAND DOLLAR VOICE SAID THE QUESTION OF CURRENCY TO DAY IS IN THE MELTING POT — HE'S RIGHT, SOME OF OURS GETS INTO THAT POT EVERY MONTH.

INTERVIEWING THE MANAGER OF A LARGE STORE HE SAID HE HOPED IT WOULD RISE, RISE, RISE, 'COS WHEN HE EVENTUALLY GOT ALL THE OUTSTANDING DEBTS IN, HE WOULD HAVE ENOUGH STERLING UPON WHICH TO RETIRE.

ALTHOUGH WE KNOW NEXT TO NOTHING ABOUT CURRENCY OURSELVES, WE DO KNOW ONE THING. THE MAN WHO SAID EXCHANGE IS NO ROBBERY WASN'T ON A STERLING SALARY.

MUN SANG COLLEGE BAZAAR

Attractive Display At Kowloon City.

FUNDS BADLY NEEDED

Side-shows and games of chance, such as gold-fish bowls, coin games, darts, the candle game and guessing competitions, provided ample entertainment and amusement at the first annual bazaar of the Mun Sang College, Kowloon City, yesterday.

In a short and appropriate address, Mrs. Hall, wife of the Right Reverend R. O. Hall, Bishop of Hong Kong, declared the bazaar open at 2.30 p.m.

Many booths displayed knitted and embroidered articles, suitable for household use, beautiful bouquets, toys and confectionery, at temptingly low prices.

Practically the entire school took part in providing the material and work for organising the bazaar, the purpose of which was to raise funds for a new school building. Many local firms generously assisted the function, contributing refreshments and material for the many articles on sale.

Hundreds of children and adults, including many Europeans, visited the bazaar. Entrance was through a ticket which could be exchanged for an article worth less than 20 cents.

Mr. Rufus Huang, principal of the school, in a short speech, stated that the school was badly in need of a new building, as the present premises were rented at a cost of $8,000 a year. He said that the school was being run at a loss of $12,000 annually.

The school received a $6,000 subsidy from the Hong Kong Government. The school, which had a strong vernacular foundation, could not always look for outside assistance, stated Mr. Huang.

Characteristics Of Present Day Life

Learning Aids Doubters Of Christianity

Originality Of Christ

(By the Rev. J. N. Lewis Bryan.)

ONE of the favourite arguments clever. Disowning it, one never can be great. There are voices of a thousand years in every character that is sublime.

When you turn to Shakespeare, you find the truth of that statement. What was his relation to the past? Did he cut himself utterly away from it? He is indebted to the past in every play. He borrowed from every quarter freely. He took his plots and characters from others,—from Plutarch or Holbein, or he would recast an older play. Yet he is supreme in his originality, the greatest creative genius of our race.

It is the poet himself who is the new thing. It is his personality that is original. He seizes all that is his in the long past, with swift and certain instinct, purifies it in the glowing furnace of his poetic fire, and makes it different for ever. He has not destroyed, he has fulfilled. In his own sphere he has made all things new, because of the genius that was his. He source of his originality lay in his personality.

New Fact In Human History The originality of Christ does not lie in the fact that He said things which no one has said before, or that He did things no one else had ever done, or dreamed of doing, but because He is original. He is the new fact in human history. He took the old, and touching it, made it for ever new.

We need not therefore be alarmed to find parallels to all His choicest sayings. If truth is eternal, and if God is One, that is what we should expect. It is to Christ Himself that there is no parallel; there is nothing like Him on the stage of history; so free from the slightest consciousness of sin; so flooded with the consciousness of God. It was that which made so profound an impression as He walked along the ways of Galilee.

There was a charm about Him—a certain quiet authority—a certain sense of distance and of depth. And men thought of the prophets when they heard Him, and caught the echo of familiar psalms,—yet everything was clad in a new glory.

Language of Christ Think of His language. His words were not jewels too costly and too curious for the common crowd. He was no collier of unfamiliar terms. He took the speech of the village street and of the home. And then He breathed upon it the breath of life. When He found "talent," it was a sum of money, now it is something more than silver. When He found "peace," it was a salutation, when He left it, it was a blessing. When He found "cross," it was a word of misery, dark with tragedy, and wet with tears. He made it a word of glory, and He gave it to heaven. The words were old and yet they were new, because He took them and passed them through His heart, where God in secret had His dwelling place. Then think of His ideas. "Take highest thought of God," "Our Father"—Was that a word that had never been uttered before? It was one of the oldest names of God, back in the cradle of the Aryan race. Every villager in Galilee had heard it. If He had been a revolutionary, would He have used it? Out of His infinite knowledge of God, could He not have coined another? Instead He took the word He found, breathed upon it the breath of life, and from that hour the Fatherhood of God has been a truth so mighty that life is different and death is different. It was not new, but He made it new. He touched it with His own peculiar glory. And that is His originality.

GIRL ORCHESTRA

Jere Lee Draws Crowds To Queen's Theatre

Great success attended Miss Jere Lee and her "Madcaps" band at the special performance at the Queen's Theatre last night. Signs of "full house" were hung early in the evening, in front of every ticket office in the lobby of the theatre.

Miss Lee's jazz band, who are now engaged to play at the China Emporium Ball-room, coupled with the spectacular film, "The Scarlet Empress," proved to be one of the greatest "box office" attractions for the season.

Comedy, dance, solos and special musical numbers were rendered by Miss Lee's band of charming girls.

If you are a Christian, then in your life and character His originality will be seen, not in singularity, but just because He will take the old powers you could not use, or use at all, and give them new energy, till out of your weakness, you become strong. He can take all our yesterdays,—even their failures, and out of them bring music for to-morrow.

CHINA'S PROGRESS IN AVIATION

acting in his capacity of Minister of Railways, had the vision to realize the value of air transport for his country. In the face of possible criticism from his associates in the National Government he took the initiative and organized the company now known as the China National Aviation Corporation.

"The early pioneering efforts met with the same obstacles as confronted similar enterprises in other countries. It was necessary to secure adequate airports, to provide complete aviation weather data, to train radio and ground personnel, and meet the many problems incident to the development of modern air transport system.

The First Commercial Flight

"The Corporation commenced business on July 8, 1929, and on October 20 of that year the first Hoening amphibian took off from Lungchow Airport (Shanghai) and the route to Hankow, a distance of 516 miles, was opened. On April 1, 1931, the Shanghai-Hankow line was extended to Ichang, at the foot of the world famed gorges of the Yangtze, and on October 21 of that year the line was further extended to distant Chungking, 16,000 miles by boat from Shanghai, thus covering almost the entire length of the great Yangtze river.

The commercial conquest of western China by air completed, the Corporation turned its attention to the north and on January 19, 1933 the Shanghai-Peking line was inaugurated. The company was encouraged to start this line by the co-operation of the present Minister of Communications, Dr. Chu Chia-hua, who provided the funds necessary to save the company from loss during the pioneering period of the first year.

"Later in 1933, on October 24, the Shanghai-Canton line to the South was established. This line, just short of 1,000 miles in length, serves the entire coast from the Yangtze Delta to the Pearl river, with other 100-million people. On November 11, 1933, the Chungking-Chengtu line was inaugurated, thereby making Chengtu the capital of the most western and one of the richest provinces in China, within easy access of Shanghai."

American Influence

Mr. Dai goes on to describe the machines in use. Here the American influence in the Far East is evident, from the fact that the fleet are of Hoening amphibians, with a crew of two and capacity for four passengers, with a cruising speed of 80 miles an hour. Only on the Shanghai-Canton line are larger craft used—Douglas Dolphin amphibians which can carry eight passengers and cruise at 150 miles an hour.

"The Corporation takes the greatest pride in the type of men employed as pilots. Twelve pilots and twelve co-pilots are at the present time employed, eleven Americans, one German, and twelve Chinese, all specially trained men with long experience in commercial aviation. No airline in the world can boast of a finer type of pilot.

With the constantly increasing popularity of air transportation in China, and the growing air-mindedness of the people, extensive plans are under consideration to provide the best and most up-to-date air service available. On all forms of the routes new and faster aircraft are to be put into use, and increased frequency of service is intended with the new machines. A new line is to be opened between Chingling and Yunnan.

Heavy Loss At First

"The pioneering years of operation by the China National Aviation Corporation were conducted at a substantial loss. This is the history of aviation transportation companies in other countries, and it was not expected that the operation would be profitable during the first three years. It is interesting to note, however, that the statement of the company's operations for the six months to June 30, 1934, reflects a small operating profit after full depreciation charges. This record is probably unique among the great air transport companies of the world, in that the Corporation does not receive any subsidy directly or indirectly from the National Government.

"A surcharge is made by the China post office for air mail service, and this entire surcharge is paid in turn to the airline by the post office. It is interesting to note that the payment thus realized from mail, plus the revenue from passengers and express, during the first six months of 1934 produced a sum of money sufficient to meet all expenses.

"Encouraged by this favourable showing, the directors of the Corporation now plan to spend far more than a million dollars in the purchase of new equipment, with the expectation that the improvement in service for air mail, passengers and express will fully warrant this expenditure and enable the Corporation to provide the best possible air service for the benefit of the public."

It is a great story of achievement, that we have heard that China is planning her development along modern lines. Here is the proof of it. It must have required an immense amount of faith to embark on a commercial aviation enterprise in China, in spite of the recognized need for quicker mail and transport, and it is amazing that we have not heard more of this enterprise of faith which has justified itself so well. The reason is, presumably, that unrest in China has focussed attention upon the military side of her air operations too much.

Well, here at last it is—the story of a new pioneering movement which will lead to the building of a new China.

WOMAN TEACHER'S BIG VENTURES

St. Dunstan's For A School

DEAL ENDS IN BANKRUPTCY

Miss Gertrude Blanche Willcocks, a school teacher, was summoned at Bow Street for failing to keep proper books of account within two years preceding the date of a bankruptcy petition against her.

Mr. Saywell, for the Director of Public Prosecutions, said in 1921 Miss Willcocks acquired the lease of premises in Sussex Place, Regent's Park, for a hostel for teachers, and considerable loans were obtained by an undertaking which she described as Teachers' Hotels, Ltd.

She next secured an option on a site in Seymour Place, Marylebone, for a college for 500 girls. Liabilities of £3,568 were incurred for plans, etc., of which £500 had been paid on account. Judgment had been obtained for the balance.

In 1930 she bought St. Dunstan's, Regent's Park, for £50,000, with the intention of running a girls' college there. Of this sum £2,000 was paid, and the balance was left on mortgage. A company called Regent's Park College, Ltd., was registered in August, 1932, and £15,493 was subscribed by 35 persons, mainly members of the scholastic profession. As much as 12 1/2 per cent was offered in some cases. She was unable to continue paying the interest, and in October, 1933, was made bankrupt.

Mr. G. F. Kingham, defending, said Miss Willcocks was formerly a head-mistress under the L.C.C., with a salary of £600 a year. She bought St. Dunstan's from Mr. Kahn, the American millionaire, when it was vacated by the soldiers, and had reason to expect that he would help her. With sufficient capital her project was expected to yield a profit of £10,000 a year. She had intended to benefit education, and her honesty was not in any way impeached.

The magistrate, Mr. Fry, said that the bankruptcy was an unfortunate and disastrous one, but there was no evidence of fraud connected with it. Although from an accountant's point of view Miss Willcocks was much to be blamed, she was yet very much to be pitied. Without recording a conviction, he bound her over to come up for judgment if called upon within twelve months.

MISS JERE LEE

AMERICAN GIRLS' ORCHESTRA

Great Reception At
China Emporium
POPULAR INNOVATION

Over 150 couples greeted Miss Jere Lee and her "Madcaps" band of six charming girls at the opening tea-dance of the season at the China Emporium yesterday.

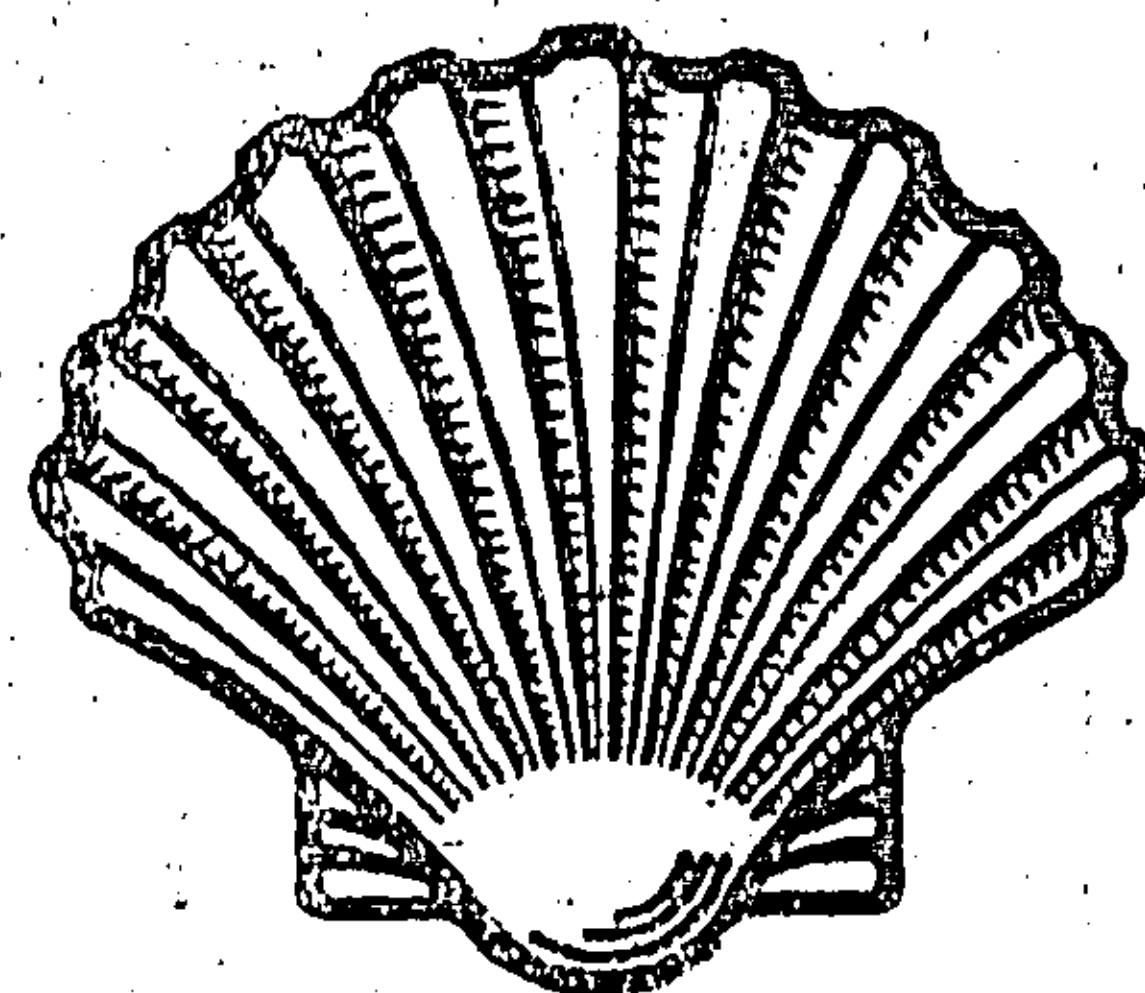

The innovation proved decidedly popular, judging from the applause that followed each dance, and by the beautiful bouquets which Miss Lee and her players received from their admirers.

The band consisted of Miss Lee's two sisters, Tilly and Juanita Lee, Rosemary Bryan, Betty Pope and Dolly Stephenson. Between them, they play no less than 30 instruments.

Miss Lee is not a new-comer to the Colony. She played here over a year ago at the Majestic cabaret while she was on her way to the East Indies during her Oriental tour. She recently completed her engagement with the Casanova in Shanghai, and she expects to go south again prior to her return to the United States.

The band which she has brought to Hong Kong is controlled and managed entirely by her.

"Give the Chinese rhythm and they can dance," said Miss Lee, when interviewed by the Sunday Herald. "I find, that this is true everywhere I play, and my 'kids' (as she calls the members of her band) find the same thing. They dance very much the same as we Americans."

SHARE MARKET.

Weekly Report.

Hong Kong, Dec. 1.
Mr. G. A. Harriman's weekly share report and market review issued at noon states:—

A much better feeling pervaded the market during the past week, and far more interest was taken in everything causing a general impetus to prices and trading which was far more brisk than has been the case for some time past.

Investment counters displayed most strength with Hong Kong Electricities bid up to 70 1/2 and Hong Kong Lands to 52 1/2. Telephones (old) were in demand at $23.35 with business done at this rate.

With the exception of Lane Crawford, which took a slide to 3 1/2, minor issues generally showed up better, China Lights (old) were again a very popular counter large parcels of shares having changed hands at rising rates from $9.20 to $9.65 and corresponding rates for forward deliveries.

Hotels remained very steady at around $4.95 cash and $5.05 January. Cements also improved with sales effected at $2.20/35, closing in demand at $2.30 cash and December. Realities provided a notable feature of the week having recovered from $4.15 to $4.86. Providents (old) were dealt in at $1.45 and more shares could be placed at this rate. There was not much change in the Sterling section, Hong Kong Banks remained in demand at $1.60 and Unions at $1.10. The tone of the market at the close is more encouraging to traders and we look for more activity in the future.

STOCKS ARE NOW A

“Buy,”
UNLESS THEY ARE A “Sale”

Has it occurred to you that one of the few, if not the only Canadian, American or English securities which you have or had that has “gone up” in the past year or two, is your life policy.

Do you know that during the war, if unfavourably known “crash” of 1929 you could not borrow from New York's largest banks $5,000 on bonds with a market value of $100,000,—but that you could borrow on your life policy, with market value of $5,000, exactly $5,000,—and at an interest rate of 6% or less.

J. P. MORGAN Sr. SAID that if a man's investments earn more than 6% he is gambling. (To-day such a rate on the best type of security is impossible in Canada, the U.S.A. or England).

WHEN Mr. MORGAN DIED it was found that about 30% of investments he had made during his lifetime proved worthless. (And he was reputed to know something about investment).

Possibly YOU haven't as reliable an access to investment information as he had,—and possibly your funds available for investment are less than he had. It would appear, then, that your chances for investment failure would be greater than were his, and that you might not be as well able to afford such loss as he was.

WE WILL GUARANTEE YOU AND YOUR DEPENDENTS AGAINST LOSS.

SECOND SERIOUS TRAGEDY

“It is about time something was done to stop this kind of dangerous flying,” said the United States coroner at the inquest on Lieut. Edward Dorsey, the Young American speed stunt pilot, who was killed while demonstrating a Boeing fighting plane over the Hungjao, aerodrome, on November 28. The coroner remarked that this was the second serious tragedy in four months.

The Far Eastern agent of the Boeing Air Company testified that Lieut. Dorsey performed acrobatics without permission. He held the opinion that Lieut. Dorsey started 75 feet above the ground for the benefit of a friend who was taking moving pictures.

Peking.

Negotiations for the retrocession of Malayu, a Pass in the Great Wall region, by the Japanese to the Chinese authorities, have again been deadlocked. The Pass was first scheduled to be handed back to China on the 15th inst., but due to the non-fulfilment on the part of the Japanese of their promise, it failed to be effected.

It was reported that its rendition would take place on December 1, but this has now been found to be incorrect, as the Japanese Kwantung Authorities are still withholding their consent and have not agreed to any definite date.—Chenka Agency.

map there is always a name. Occasionally a name is changed; but the reason is not always given. One example was a Railway Station in Africa at the end of a narrow and hot valley, which appeared on the time tables as Otasell, quiet an imposing word which has the appearance of a Hottentot word. After figuring in the time tables for about three years the name was questioned, and the surveyor explained that the origin would reveal itself if the syllables were separated, and an apostrophe placed in front of the first and the last, (“Ot as ‘Ell”). A plous substitute was found in “Zending,” the Dutch word for Mission. A change is also indicated in an Admiralty Chart of the Island of Lemnos, where the port of Mudros became so familiar during the Gallipoli Expedition. It appears that a sloop was sent to survey the island; under the command of a Commander Corry, who became unpopular through refusing shore leave. The four hills overlooking the town appeared on the chart as Yam Hill, Yrroo Hill, Eb Hill, and Denmad Hill, which are quite as good as any other Turkish names in the vicinity. The names spelled backwards are not so convincing.

LIBERTY BAY ECLIPSES OWN RECORD IN 1½ MILES AT VALLEY

TWO MARKS BETTERED AND ANOTHER EQUALLED BY DUNBAR CRACK

NELL GWYN GOES LAME WHEN LEADING

FLYING TOURIST PAYS $657 FOR WIN AND TILlicum $193

"EWO" HANDICAP EVENT

WINNING THE ST. ANDREW'S STAKES FOR THE THIRD YEAR IN SUCCESSION, LIBERTY BAY (MR. B. A. PROULX) SHATTERED HIS OWN 1½ MILES RECORD BY FOUR AND FOUR-FIFTH SECONDS YESTERDAY WHEN DEFEATING TRENTBRIDGE, LAST YEAR'S DERBY AND ST. LEGER WINNER, BY MANY LENGTHS. ANOTHER RECORD MIGHT HAVE BEEN BETTERED IN THE AUSTRALIAN RACE HAD H.E. THE GOVERNOR'S NELL GWYN NOT GONE LAME IN THE HOME STRETCH WHEN APPROXIMATELY 10 LENGTHS IN THE LEAD.

It was undoubtedly a splendid afternoon's sport, a fairly large crowd witnessing two major upsets when Flying Tourist (Mr. Tang Man Wa) won the Crief Handicap to pay $657.60, the highest dividend this year, and when Tillicum (Mr. Black) won the Comrie Handicap to pay $193. In all, only two favourites—Liberty Bay and Partnership—won in the seven official races. The "daily double"—Partnership and Little Beauty—paid $20.50.

Mr. Benny Proulx carried off the riding honours with two wins and a third in six starts, while the Dunbar stable recorded three wins and a second.

THE "EWO" (DISTANCE) HANDICAP, AN ANNUAL EVENT WHICH IS ALSO HELD IN TIENTSIN, SHANGHAI AND HANKOW, FOR RIDERS FROM JARDINE'S, WAS WON BY MR. D. L. NEWBIGGER ON THE FAVOURITE, KUNG. HE WAS PRESENTED WITH A CUP SUITABLY INSCRIBED BY MR. W. J. KESWICK IN THE LATTER'S BOX IMMEDIATELY AFTER THE RACE.

The eight ponies in the "Ewo" Handicap, an unofficial event, got away to a very indifferent start, so much so that the scratch pony, Punch (Mr. Butler), had passed three rivals by the time the foot-ball stands were reached. Two Clubs (Mr. Keswick), however, got moving quickly and was only caught on the corner into the home straight by Kung (Mr. Newbigging), the favourite. Though he appeared to comeback over the last furlong, he was beaten by four lengths. Black Velvet (Mr. Gardiner) secured third place and City of Shanghai (Mr. Eckford) was fourth, ahead of Punch.

Last year's event was won by Mistleton (Mr. Remedios).

Oak Bay Wins in Canter
Oak Bay (Mr. Proulx) recorded his second successive win when he won the Glasgow Handicap in a canter from the favourite, King's Warden (Mr. Heard).

Getting away to a good start, the Dunbar colours had soon secured an appreciable lead which he never looked like losing. High Speed, second favourite, which followed him, was passed by the favourite entering the straight and was nudged out of third stake money by Soldier of Germany.

The Leger favourite took time to warm up to his task and Mr. Heard was unable to get closer than 8 lengths, despite the fact that Oak Bay was pulled up long before the post was reached.

Oak Bay paid $29.20 for his win—he was third favourite.

Liberty Bay Sets Record
The St. Andrew's Stakes resulted exactly as expected, except that Liberty Bay (Mr. Proulx) beat his own track record by 0.04 seconds.

Hotman (Mr. Davis) left the barrier like a rocket and Liberty Bay was not much in arrears. Together they flashed round the bend into the home stretch for the first time, having accomplished the first quarter in 0.27.0. Liberty Bay took the lead passing the stands and increased it, despite Trentbridge's effort at the foot-ball stands—when he overtook his stable-mate. The Dynasty entry gained on Liberty Bay in the back straight, but at the Rock Mr. Heard appeared to give up all hope. His win by a head from What A Chance, (Mr. P. Botelho) another outsider, paid $657.60 and $95.80 for a place!

Wayward Stag got away to a good start and led into the home straight, but was quickly overhauled by What A Chance, Don, and The Tiger. It was only in the last 50 yards that Flying Tourist appeared in the picture at all and it was sufficient to see him give his new owner, Dr. Lee Shiu Kee, his first success.

Don, an "A" Class pony at the commencement of the season, was ridden into third place by Mr. Deltz to pay $49.60, only a head separating him from What A Chance. Wayward Stag and Valorous were fourth and fifth, and the favourite, Ribble, was nowhere!

Following the race, Mr. Paul Botelho, rider of What A Chance, was suspended by the Stewards for the rest of the meeting for misuse of the whip. Riding close to Don (Mr. Deltz) in a thrilling finish, he is alleged to have struck, quite accidentally, Mr. Deltz in his attempts to urge his own mount on. It is understood he was warned previously for lifting his whip above the shoulder.

Nell Gwyn's Bad Luck

Leading by about 10 lengths when entering the home stretch, Nell Gwyn (Mr. Proulx), H. E. the Governor's Australian mare, went lame in the Coogee Handicap and was fully extended to secure third place behind Alacrity (Mr. Fung) and Night Star (Mr. Butler), which swept past her as the stands were being reached.

It was bad luck on Mr. Proulx as Nell Gwyn might have broken her own record but for the mishap, and it would have provided him with his third winner of the afternoon.

Alacrity's win created a big surprise, paying lucky supporters $57.20.

The quarters for this race were: 26.1, 26.0, 27.1, and 28.1.

Favourite Beaten

Mr. W. H. Choy rode one of the best judged races of the afternoon when he brought Little Beauty home to pay $19.90 in the Novices' Race. Chesterfield (Mr. Taylor), the favourite, after depriving Bold Commander of the lead at the Rock, was second, while Delightful Chance, filled third position with Soldier of Fortune and Hell for Leather close on his heels.

Little Beauty, second favourite, came through perfectly over the last furlong and won by half a length.

Second Big Upset

The second big upset occurred in the last race when Mr. Black rode a grand finish on Tillicum in the Comrie Handicap to pay a win dividend of $193 and $42.90 for a place.

The light had almost gone when the race started and it was exceedingly difficult to follow the race. Chief Seattle led into the straight and appeared to have the race well in hand, but Soldier of Germany and Great Hall were quickly on level terms. Tillicum then came through like a shot from the blue to secure the verdict by half a length and give the Dunbar stable their third win of the afternoon.

Chief Seattle and Heart's Glory were fourth and fifth behind Great Hall and Solar Star.

The following were the complete results:

INTERNATIONAL JEWRY MAKE PEACE OFFERING TO GERMANY

Kowloon Extend Lincolns

KOWLOON PLAYERS SENT OFF

but Tang Chung-pak cleared for Kwok Yau-loy to walk through and score. It was so sudden that it left McNider dumbfounded and he made no effort to save. Four minutes later Tze Shui-yul centred very nicely for Chiu Tak-fai to head the second goal. But feeling then began to creep into the game, Duffield being cautioned for charging a player in the back, and last 15 minutes of the first half saw nothing but free kicks for infringements, but neither team scored.

Kowloon Score

In the opening minute of the second half Kowloon forced a corner and Hope headed Kowloon's only goal. From the kick Ip Yui-po ran down the wing and passed to Kwok Yau-loy who scored his second goal. Ten minutes from resuming Duffield fouled Mok Yui-sung and received marching orders. Duffield was very hesitant about going and commenced arguing with the official until his skipper told him to leave the field.

Just after this incident Kwok Yau-loy made a solo run and completed his "hat-trick." Unpleasantness amongst the players was now very evident and the referee called the Kowloon team together and spoke to them regarding their mode of play, but five minutes after Duffield's departure Hickman received marching orders. In the last ten minutes Kwok Yau-loy scored two more goals and South China won a very fierce game by 6 goals to 1.

Kowloon—McNider; Cutter, Hickman; Hopkins, Tyndall, Tillery; Thompson, Pope, Winch, Duffield and Percira. South China—Lee Chun; Tang Chung-pak, Tang Yat-wing; Henry Young, Mok Yui-sung, Wai Cho-cho; Tze Shui-yul, Chiu Tak-fai, Li Wing-on, Kwok Yau-loy, Ip Yui-po.

NAVY BEAT EASTERN IN POOR GAME

Glass Balloons Penalty Kick Over Bar

O'DONNELL SCORES TWICE

A very uninteresting and poor game was witnessed at Caroline Hill yesterday when the Navy defeated the Eastern A.A. by 3 goals to nil.

Perhaps the Navy, meeting such poor opposition, could not produce the delightful football that was seen against the Artillery at the Valley last week, but it is certain that they did not give of their best yesterday. Their speed and short passing was most noticeably absent, whilst wild kicking in front of goal was very prominent.

Eastern, as a team, were very weak and lacked combination. The individual efforts of the forwards, which were very few, usually came to nothing.

From the commencement the Navy pressed, and after 20 minutes Lau Ting Chai, during a melee, handled the ball in the penalty area. Glass took the kick and sent the ball high over the cross bar.

Dodds Makes Opening

Play then swung from one end to the other before a run down by Dodds opened the scoring. From the touch-line Dodds swung the ball towards the goal. Ng Chi Sam, running out to save, over-ran the ball and Males snapped up the opportunity. Soon afterwards the Navy scored again. A free kick, sent along the ground to Glass, was sent over to O'Donnell, who, with a first-time drive, flashed the ball into the net.

A few minutes after the interval the Navy secured their third goal. Glass, receiving the ball from Bright, passed to O'Donnell, who sent in a simple shot to score. The match was one of the poorest seen this season, and the Eastern will certainly go to the bottom of the league unless drastic alterations are made. Of their players Lai Ting Chai, Ng Yung Kay and Leo Bing Tong were the most outstanding.

In the navy team Solomon and Bower were sound, whilst mention must be made of Hinder and Males who are always indefatigable workers.

Navy:—McSweeney; Solomon, Bower, White, West, Bright; Dodds, Males, Glass, O'Donnell, Hinder. Eastern:—Ng Chi Sam; Lai Ting Chai, Fung Yui Wai, Ng Yung Kay, Lau Kio Fai, Chan Yuen Fat, Leo Bing Tong, Fung Chai Po, Sung Ning Sing, M. Moosa, M. Sabham.

LINCOLNS BEAT ARTILLERY BY CLEVER SOCCER

MacKrail Saves Bigger Defeat

RUSH FINE OPPORTUNIST

The Lincolns did not leave much room for doubt as to which was the better team when they met the Artillery in the Second Division yesterday and won by four goals to 1.

Right from the kick-off, they played clever, thrifty football, and it was only the exceptionally fine display of MacKrail that kept their total to four. The long passes of Clayton to McGuinness soon had the Artillery defence running to and fro, and it was apparent from the way Harper and McGuinness seized their opportunities to shoot that sooner or later one or the other would prevail.

The first goal came from Rush. Harper received the ball from Clayton, drew the defence, and tapped the ball across to Rush, who, taking it to within two yards of the net, scored with a high shot. Immediately after the kick-off, Clayton flashed across a shot which MacKrail, more by luck than by good judgement, managed to clear. McGuinness then tried a shot which the "keeper with difficulty punched out for Harper to return just outside the upright.

After the interval it appeared for a time as if the Artillery might equalise, but Taylor kept his goal intact.

Brown, at inside-right for the Gunners, was at this stage showing some clever footwork, but it was not serving any good purpose.

A pass up the right wing sent Clayton away again, and with a fine centre he placed Rush in possession, who, although not meeting it squarely, deflected it into the net, as MacKrail rushed out.

A fine attempt to score was made by Mosely, the Gunners' left wing, who put across a shot which brought Taylor off his knees. Brown and Leach rushed him, but he cleared. The ball came to Morton who drew the defence, then passed forward to Rush, who, though in a doubtful position, placed the ball into the net.

For a while following this the Artillery called the tune, and it was no more than they deserved when Leach found the net with a drive which gave Taylor no chance. It was not long after the Artillery had scored, that Clayton went very near with a shot which hit the crossbar.

Morton gained the ball from the goalkick, passed up to McGuinness, who in turn, centred to Rush. Taking it on the run, Rush netted again with a first-timer.

In the Lincoln team, Clayton and McGuinness were the live wires, with Rush as a splendid opportunist. The half-backs and backs played well, and Taylor in goal made no mistakes.

In the Artillery team, however, Hunt, Morton and Hall were over-worked, and on very few occasions did the forwards look dangerous. Price, at right-back, played a robust game and gave Teyno very little rope, while MacKrail in goal was exceptionally good.

Lincolns—Taylor; Dodds, Colclough, Maughan, Widy, Potter; Clayton, Harper, Rush, McGuinness and Teyno. Royal Artillery—MacKrail; Price, Ives; Hunt, Morton, Hall; Rivers, Brown, Leach, Taylor, Mosely.

"HAT TRICK" FOR SOUZA

Radio Prove Too Good For Recreio

In a hatless game at the Valley yesterday the Radio easily defeated the Recreio by 5 goals to 1.

The Radio were the better of two poor teams. The two inside-forwards and the centre-forward combined well together, and it was from this trio that all the goals were scored. Souza obtained the "hat-trick."

The Recreio played very scrappy football, and the only man that shone was Santos, their centre-forward, but he had little support. At the interval the Radio led by a

ORDNANCE STAGE GREAT RALLY

Railway Advantage Discounted

DUFFILL IMPRESSES

After being two goals down in the first ten minutes of their game against the Railway the R.A.O.C. made a fine recovery to run out winners by 5 goals to 2.

In the early stages of the game the Ordnance defence was all at sea, but, after Kirtland had found the net twice for the Railway, they settled down and played sufficiently well to break up the remaining Railway attacks. The interval arrived with the Ordnance one goal in arrears, but immediately after the kick off in the second half Prince went down the wing before he centred for Routledge to make no mistake.

From the kick-off the soldiers went down a second time, and for the third time Routledge found the net. The same player registered three more goals, and before the final whistle blow Prince made the total seven with a fine shot from the right. Duffill, at inside-right, played a clever, unselfish game, but threw away his best opportunity of scoring when he took a penalty and drove the ball straight at the keeper.

Vorsfold at centre-half also played a good game and held the nippy Railway forwards well. The Railway would probably have done better had they not been so fast, for on many occasions they over-ran the ball and allowed the slower Ordnance backs to clear.

NO GOAL-POSTS

Third Division Game Called Off

The match between the Police and R.A.F. was unable to be played at the Valley yesterday.

Both teams turned out, as did the Referee, but no goal posts had been erected on the Athletic ground. After a wait of 10 minutes, during which time no one appeared with the posts the Referee was obliged to call off the game.

Goal scored by Souza and after the change over they scored four more goals through Ayook, Souza (2) and Hussain. Immediately after the fifth goal had been registered the Recreio swept down the field and Laurence scored their only goal.

S. CHINA "B" TO BE FULLY TESTED TO-DAY

Athletic And Navy To Clash

FOUR SENIOR SOCCER GAMES

Two first-class football games are promised the public to-day when the Recreio entertain South China "B" in Kowloon, and the Athletic clash with the Navy on the Club ground.

In addition to these, South China "A," who are now leading the senior division, meet the Artillery at Caroline Hill, while the East Lanes and the Police clash at Soukumpoo.

This is the first Sunday in the football season with four senior games on the programme. The Recreio possess one of the fastest and most dangerous forward lines in the Colony, and with A. V. Gosno leading the attack, South China "B" will have to produce their very best form to stave off their first defeat.

South China "B" it will be recalled, were lucky to beat the Athletic on the Club ground three weeks ago, but this afternoon luck will probably play a very small part in the encounter, for the Recreio are almost up to the same strength as when they secured First Division honours some years ago.

The Athletic, who have improved tenfold since last season, will meet a strong Navy team, on the Club ground and, as both combinations seem to be at home here, a very fast and interesting game should result. The following is the forecast with the favoured team in capitals.

With the score standing at 0-9 in favour of the Club, play became scrappy, the Navy continually being penalised for off-side, while precious moments were wasted by bad picking by the Navy forwards in the tight scrums.

A few minutes from the final whistle Lamont scored the best try of the day, when, following a forward rush, the ball came back to Lamont, who sold the dummy and hurried over the Navy line as Pack Bedford attempted to grass him with a high tackle. Robertson failed to add the points.

The last minutes of the game saw the Navy backs in several promising movements, but St. Clair Ford and Biggie, the wing three-quarters, were too closely marked, while the forwards could not get the better of the Club pack.

Dr. J. A. R. Sulby refereed and the teams were:

SAINTS WIN

At the commencement of the game, the Saints pressed, but their efforts were broken up by the "Y" defence, mainly through Miss Wilson. After the Saints had scored the "Y" took up the offensive, but were too erratic. The forwards were poorly supported by Miss Dalziel and Miss Hickey, in the half back line.

Miss J. Wong at centre half, was the outstanding player in the second half, feeding her forwards with perfect passes. On their standard of play the St. Andrew's Ladies deserved their victory, but both teams should have scored more often.

£10,000 A Day On Horses --He Says He Cannot Lose

Paris, the secret, but says it is "simplicity itself."
A man who says he gambles £10,000 a day on horses is the most famous figure at French race meetings just now.
He is M. Anselme Dubois. "I reckon to stake a million francs (more than £12,500 at present rates) at every race meeting from now on," M. Dubois tells the crowd that follows him every time he goes to the betting booths. "And I shall not stop until I have won 100,000,000 francs (£12,500,000 roughly at present rates)." This he confidently expects to accomplish in a few months.
"INFALLIBLE"
Although he has been a racegoer and backer for 40 years, M. Dubois says it was only recently that he discovered his "infallible" method of winning. He refuses to reveal

MOTOR CYCLE WITH CAR-TYPE ENGINE

To Regain A Speed Record

An acquaintance of mine (says a writer in The Motor Cycle) who in his time has done quite a lot of racing and tuning, recently pooh-poohed the idea that a twin-cylinder machine can over put the world's maximum motor cycle speed record up to a point where it will be safe from foreign competition (the record is, of course, held at the moment by Henne, the German, at a speed of 151.86 m.p.h.).

His own pet idea is a specially built machine with a four-cylinder water-cooled engine, super-charged, of course, and incorporating the vast amount of knowledge that has been gained with this type of engine in the car world.

In the Retrospective Section of the Paris Motor Show is a steam-driven vehicle which was built in 1770.

Its claimed speed is 3 m.p.h., and its single wooden front wheel is driven by two large vertical cylinders.

The boiler, a semi-globular kettle-like container in copper, is hung right in front, presumably so that the driver can see that it does not come off the bolt! The vehicle cost £20,000 to build!

BEWARE, MOTORIST!

Ten Million Motor-Cars For Britain?

"I should not be surprised in ten years' time to see at least ten million cars in use in Britain. The number is now little over a million," said Sir Herbert Austin recently.

What will the railways do about it? At present they appear to blame lost traffic on to coaches and buses. If they continue to lose traffic after these operators are nicely restricted, will they turn their attentions to the private motorist?

CONCEALED RADIATOR FILLERS

Now that so many manufacturers are adopting the practice of putting radiator caps under the bonnet I would very much like to know the advantages of this, to my mind, retrograde step, says a correspondent in "The Autocar."

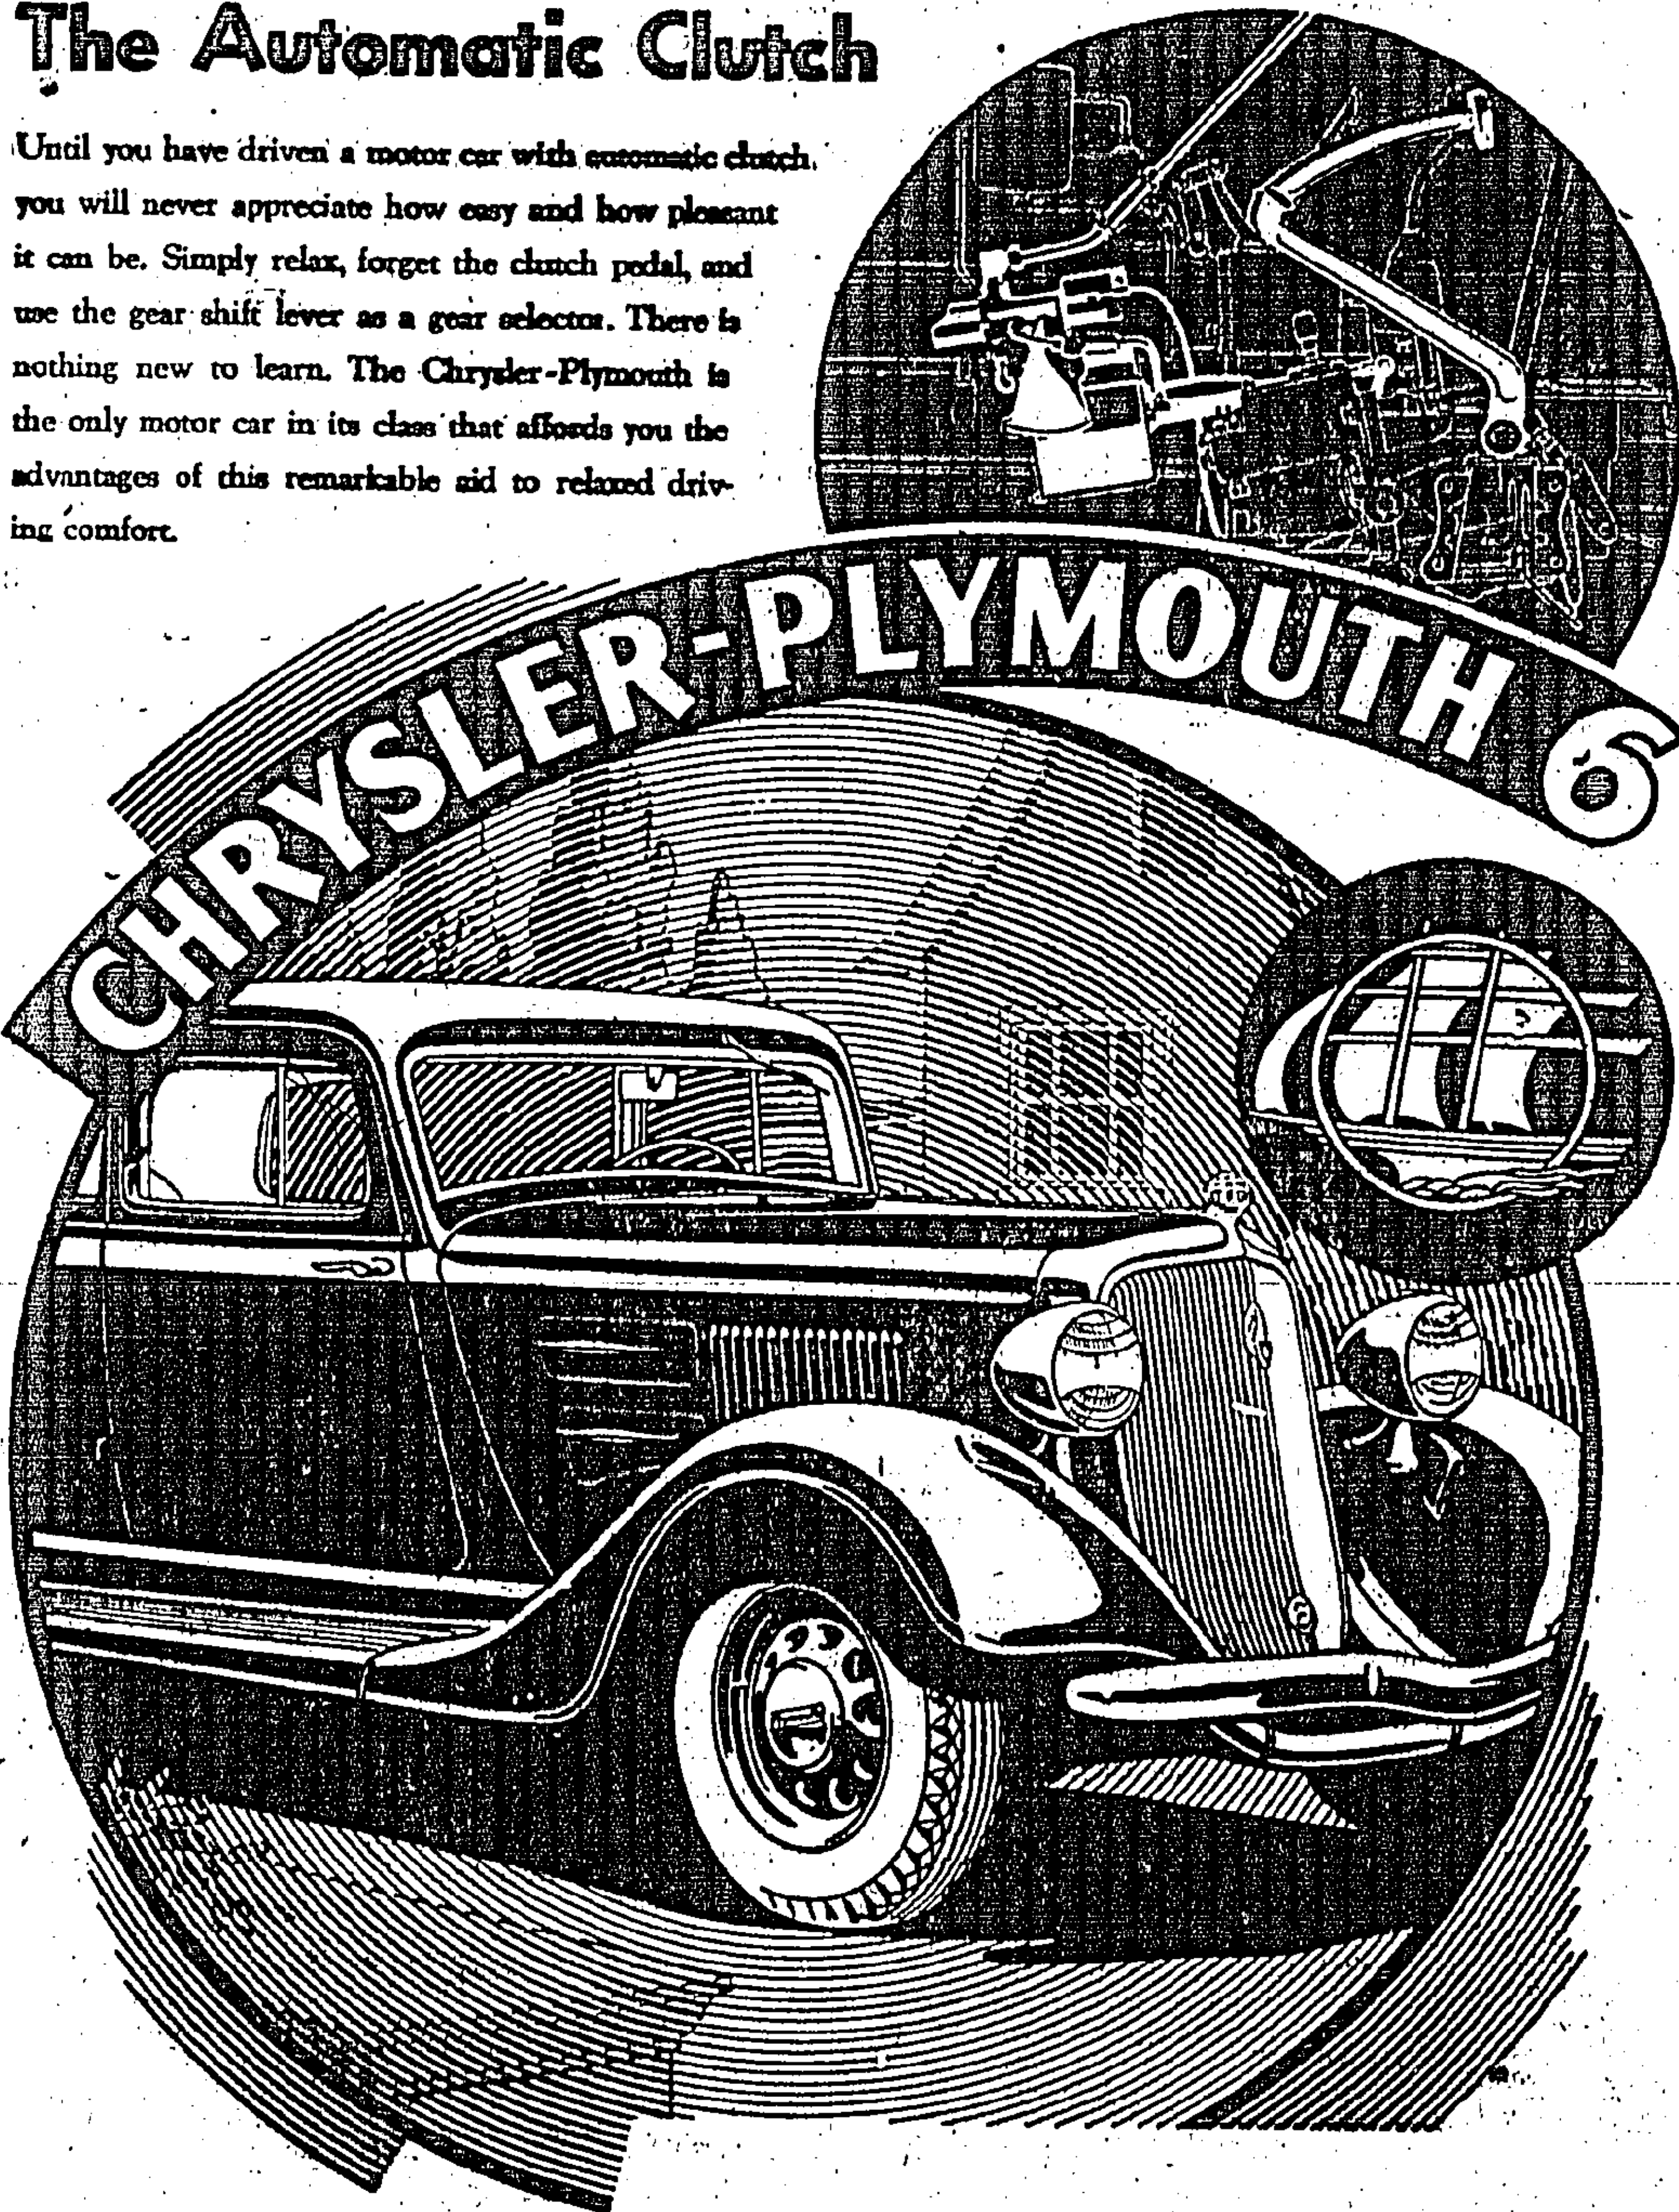

It makes topping up the radiator a more troublesome job, and does not materially improve the good looks of a car.

WHEN NOT TO LEAD TRUMPS

(By LADY RHODES)

ALTHOUGH it is a sound practice for the declarer to remove the opponents' trumps at the earliest possible moment, it is useless for her to do so and then discover too late that this lead is going to cost her the contract.

Before deciding to lead trumps, therefore, and before even playing to the opening lead, study your own hand and dummy's, and see if you can afford to do so at once.

If you can, well and good; it is foolish not to. But there are many occasions when something else has to be done first, and it is then that the "automatic" trump leader invariably gets into trouble.

Here are a few examples of hands where the declarer cannot afford to begin on her trumps. In each case the contract is four Hearts.

1.— North
S.—8 2 D.—A 9 3
H.—K Q J 9 6 2 C.—K 5

South

S.—Q J 10 D.—K 6 4
H.—7 8 3 C.—A 7 6 2

East's opening lead is the Queen of Clubs. The declarer must win the trick with the King and lead a Spade. Whatever the return lead is, she must win trick and lead a second Spade. She will thus be able to get rid of the losing Diamond in her hand on dummy's good Spade and, except against a freakish distribution, must make her contract, losing one trick in Hearts and two in Spades.

If, on the other hand, after winning the first Club trick she leads the King of Hearts, the opponents may return a Diamond, in which case she will have to lose four tricks—one in trumps, two in Spades, and one in Diamonds—as she will not be able to get a Spade good in time to be able to discard her losing Diamond.

2.— North
S.—9 6 6 4 D.—K 8
H.—A K J 5 4 2 C.—A

South

S.—10 3 D.—A J 7 6
H.—Q 10 7 C.—Q 8 4 3

East's opening lead is the nine of Clubs. Here the declarer can see ten tricks, provided that she can ruff one of her Spades. On winning the first trick, therefore, she would lead a Spade.

East's and West's best defence is to return a trump, but even if they do, the declarer can lead another Spade, and though another trump may be led, she will still be able to ruff one of her Spades. If she starts by removing East's and West's trumps, she may easily lose four Spade tricks. And even if she has one preliminary round of Hearts and then tries for the Spade ruff, one of the opponents may hold three trumps, and if that opponent wins both the Spade leads and returns a trump each time, there will be no trumps left in dummy for the ruff, and the declarer will be reduced to a Diamond finesse which will cost her an extra trick if it fails.

Finally, the declarer may have to postpone leading trumps, because she may need some or all of her own and dummy's for cross-ruffing; for instance:

North
S.—A 8 4 3 2 D.—NH
H.—A K Q 8 C.—A 7 5 2

South

S.—9 D.—9 5 4 2
H.—J 10 9 4 C.—10 8 6 4

East opens with the King of Diamonds. Declarer trumps with her eight, and leads the Ace and another Spade which she trumps with the four of Hearts. She then returns to her hand with the Ace of Clubs, and ruffs three more Spades with dummy's Hearts, and three more Diamonds with her own, thus getting her contract by using all her partner's trumps separately.

This plan can be defeated only if West has a singleton Spade or either opponent has clubs in Clubs.

Throughout his next voyage he discounted that whole business of closed windows. It surely could not hurt him to put up with a little thing like that, to humour her, poor darling Carry, throughout those very short periods as spent at home. What a selfish brute he must be to let anything like that come between his wife and himself, risking their mutual happiness, her infinitely precious life.

All very well. But he could not think; he could not be himself; he could not sleep in the close atmosphere of home life. He became irritable in a way he had never been before; irritability alternating with fits of the most desperate repentance and humility. For who could have a better wife than Caroline, so sweet-tempered and gentle, so unselfish, such a wonderful housekeeper?

Once, indeed, he did make up his mind that he could not bear it any longer. That was during a West Indian cruise—sunlit days and balmy star-strewn night. Throughout his entire voyage home across the wind-swept Atlantic his decision hardened. But when he did get back he found his wife, frailest and sweeter than ever, with his child at her breast, and what was there for a man, a man with any sort of heart—and he was all heart and simplicity and manly kindness—to do at a time like this?

It was then that I first met him: a sturdy, square-built little fellow, the typical naval officer; deeply-tanned skin, closely-cropped, curly fair hair and intensely blue eyes, with an oddly baulked and puzzled expression in them.

Mrs. Savage was still laid up, and I had called to inquire after her.

"How can he live in such an atmosphere?" I wondered, a little contemptuously, for I was very young. It was a spring day, with a blazing sun full upon the shut windows, there was a bright fire burning in the grate, and such air as there was heavy with the sour smell of hot flannel. In the midst of our rather strained conversation I remembered how he tipped across the room, and bending low, turned some tiny garment which lay airing upon the low fender, and how red his face was he raised it.

I think that it must have been at this time he gave up the fight; finding life duller, flatter, and yet in a way easier to live, as though lungs and heart—aye, and aspirations, too—had accustomed themselves to lower plane of life. After all, he adored his wife and son; and children had to be kept warm.

When the boy came back from his first term at a preparatory school and flung open the drawing-room window, he rebuked him; he was sincerely horrified—and how sincere he was in everything, in every way! "Your mother will take cold," he said; and he really thought it, had grown to think it.

Later on, home from Eton, the lad asserted himself: "Such bosh! As if it could do anyone harm to get a little fresh air. It must be awfully bad for Mummy to sit about in stuffy rooms all the time." He took "a firm hand" with her.

BEEES IN BATTLE IN GERMANY

Driven Away By Sitting Pheasants

Berlin.

A pitched battle between sitting pheasants and a swarm of bees at Cassel, Hesse, resulted in the repulse of the bees with heavy losses on both sides.

The bees started it by buzzing around the broody hens.

One of the pheasants, waited its chance, snapped at a bee and swallowed it.

This bee happened to be the Queen.

Her distracted subjects descended on the pheasants and their nests in search of her.

The pheasants defended themselves valiantly, and finally drove the swarm away. Their eggs, however, were all smashed.

PEOPLE PROFIT FROM BAKERS' BATTLE

The bakers of Kovno are engaged in such bitter rivalry that that city now eats the cheapest bread in Europe. A two-pound rye loaf costs but 1½d.

as he said, treating her with a sort of lordly despotism.

"You don't know what is good for you," he declared. And then, again: "It beats me how the Governor, stands it." He was contemptuous of his father: women were silly by nature, but men were fools to give in to them. "Seems queer to think of the old Governor commanding a ship—a fleet," he said. "Only shows!"—meaning what muffs the authorities were. The son's attitude distressed the father, but it did not distress mother. In some odd way she gloried in it: "I'm one of those women who were made to be bullied," was what she said, and laughed at the open windows, laughed when the boy came in with his usual exclamation: "Lord! how stuff the room is!" and throw them wide; then, forgetting what he had done, went out again, leaving the door open also.

It happened once too often, he was in a temper about something, flung out of her room, out of the house; stayed away, and did not even write; while she, starting with a cold in her head, crept back into her wraps, her artless way of life, more pitiously fragile than ever—for a little while, a very little while.

Admiral Savage reached home just in time to see her alive, no more. For the half of one night he sat by her bed, and then, with a soft little sigh, she slipped away in his arms.

He stayed where he was until dawn, when the nurse and doctor almost forced him away between them; that baffled look plainer upon his face, in his still bright blue eyes, than it had ever been before.

When they allowed him to return to his wife's room, Carry was lying very straight beneath a white sheet, and it struck him with a dreadful sense of strangeness that she should not be turned on one side, huddled together, shivering; for there was nothing but that that sheet, and—oh, cruel, cruel!—the window had been flung wide, top and bottom.

He crept over to it and shut it. Very quickly, found a couple of blankets and covered her, folding them double above her little feet, pointing so stiffly upwards; then knelt by the bed, with face buried in the clothes, weeping like a child.

It must have been close upon two hours later when his son came in; for it was broad daylight, with the not April sunshine filling the room.

"Thought!" he said: "no need to keep the place like a hot-house now, I suppose," and, walking to the window, flung it wide.

It was a dreadful thing: one of those amazing tragedies which seem past all comprehension. Of course he might have fallen out; it was low sill—but then, grown men do not fall out of windows, and there was the Admiral's statement:

"I pushed him out. You see, the door was open, too; she was in a direct draught." Then, very quietly: "I couldn't stand that, you know."

A delusion, of course. An Admiral and all—a man with such a splendid record!

Yes, yes, of course! But—Oh, well, it is certain that the window was shut when the nurse and servants came running up, and the dead man could not have closed it after him. Besides, there was the Admiral's own attitude.

"Sitting quite quietly by the late Mrs. Savage's bedside, that's what they said. When we tried to break it to him, he turned round and stared: 'Yes, yes, I know, that's what he said and: Might I trouble you to shut the door?'—speaking quiet, crossly—for him."

All this said, a delusion. He simply could not have done such a thing. Mad—mad! There was that puzzled look in his eyes, and doctor's statement.

"He had suffered from his head for years and years—high blood-pressure—very likely to affect the brain, in time, at any moment of excitement. An over-close roof particularly bad for him. I can't say how often I've warned him against that very thing, but—Oh, well, you know, these naval men are used to having it all their own way; and you have heard what he said to the servants, his first words when he heard of his son's death: 'Shut the door!'

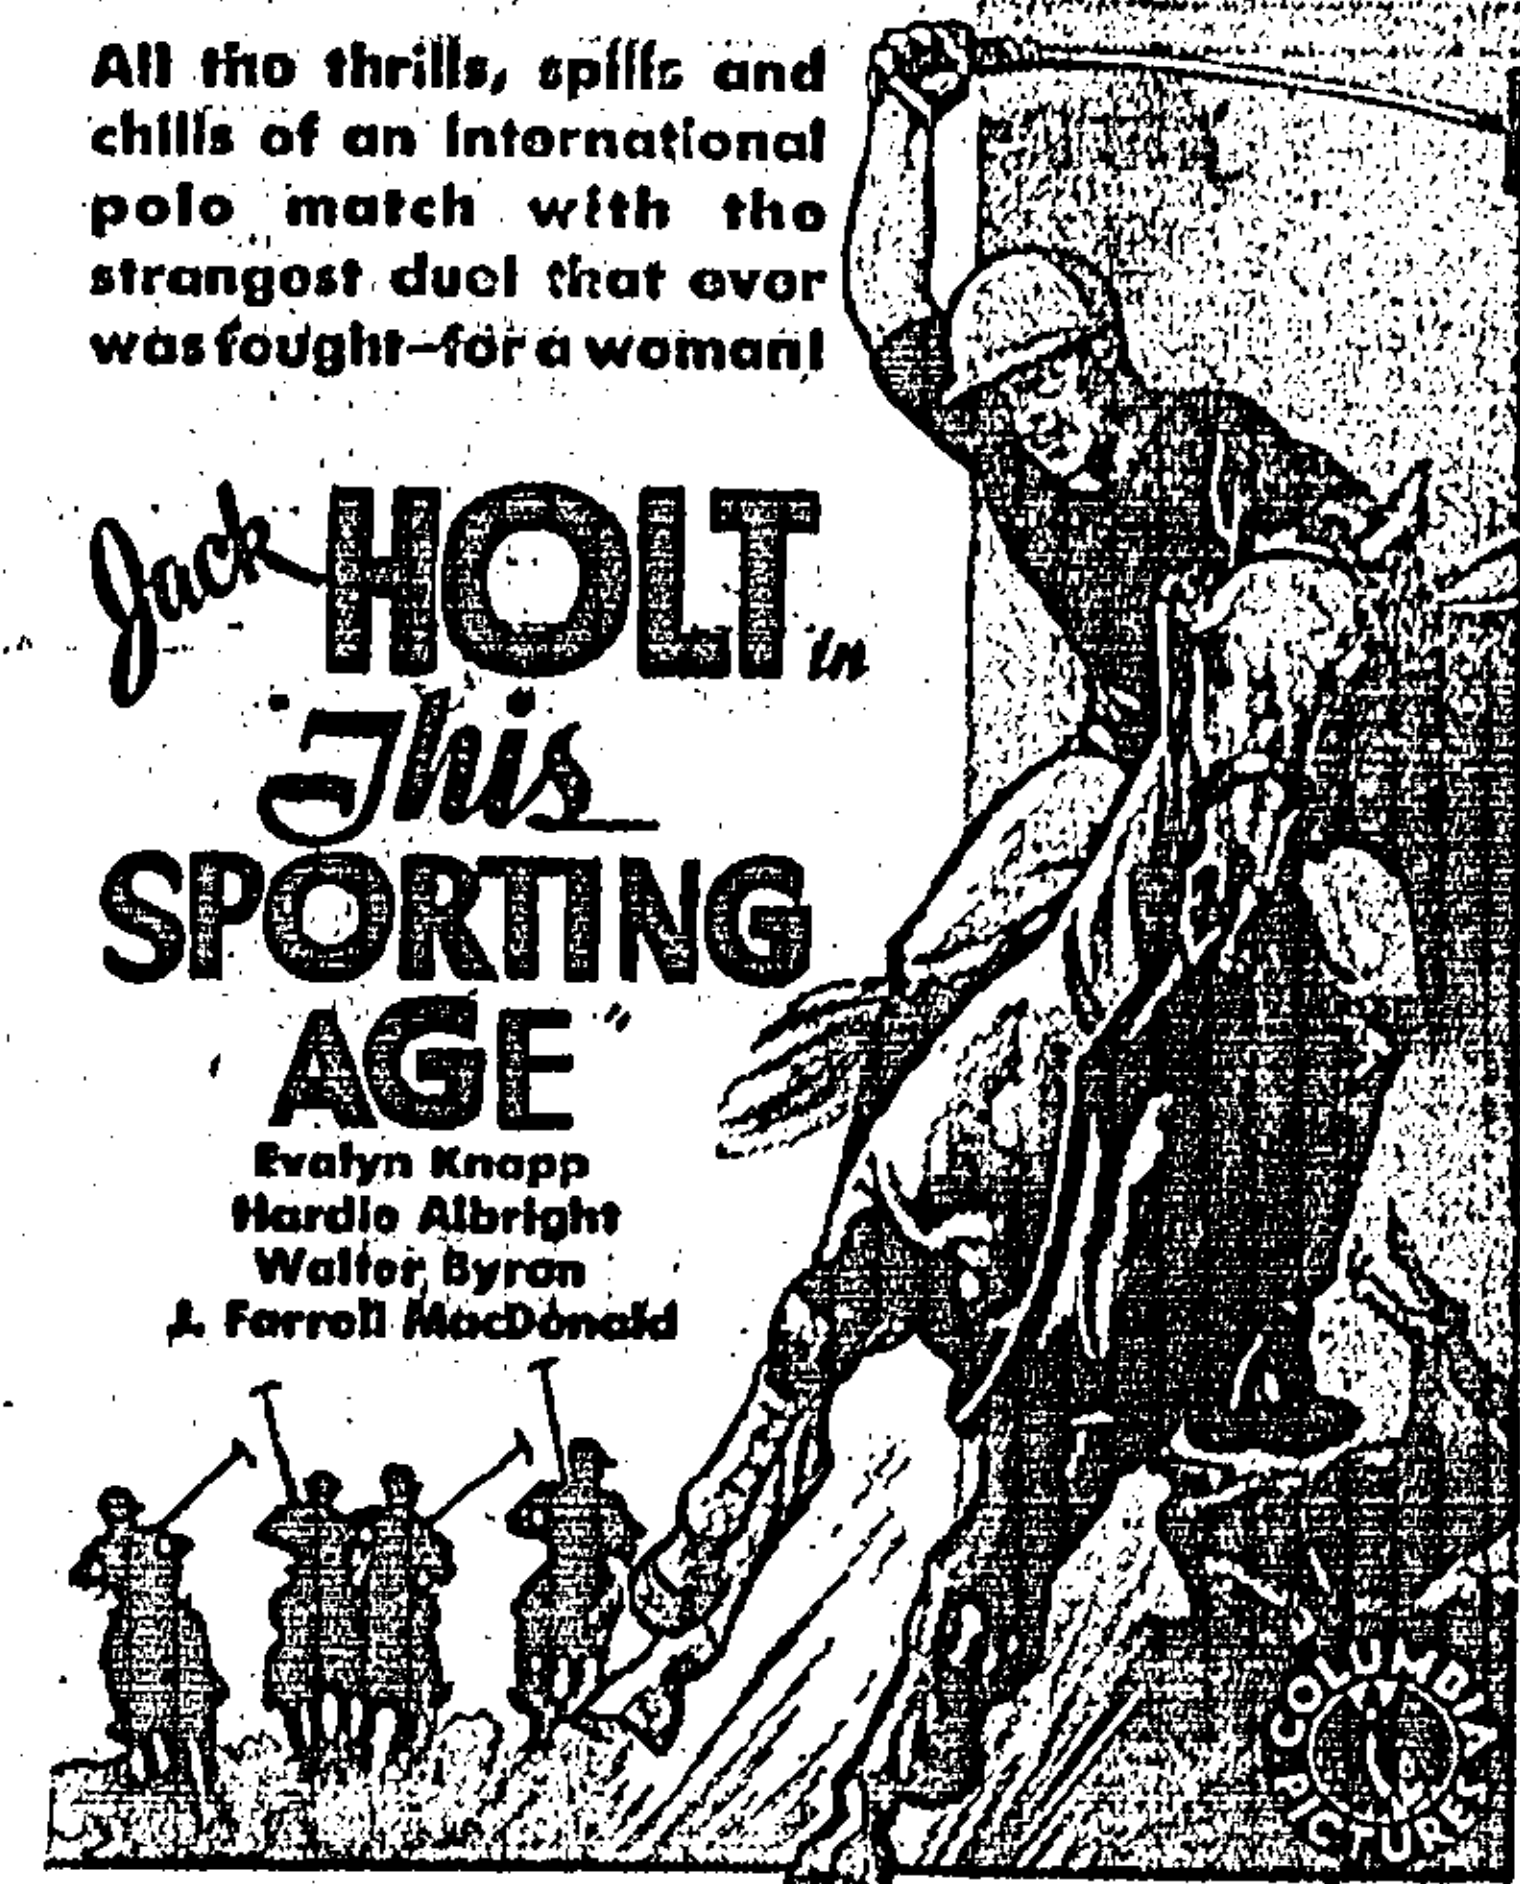

"An obsession—oh yes, that's what it was: an obsession." (The End)

Nanking Leader Comes South

Momentous Meeting In Hong Kong

SUN FO TO MEET HU HAN-MIN

Shanghai, Yesterday.
Mr. Sun Fo and Dr. Wang Chung-hui left for Hong Kong this morning aboard the s.s. Athos. They were farewelled by the Finance Minister, Dr. H. H. Kung, Major Wu Teh-chen, Dr. C. T. Wang and other notables.

A member of the party expressed optimism regarding the trip, and said that public confidence and opinion are strong factors for influencing an agreement between Nanking and Canton by peaceful means.

Dr. Wang Chung-hui may remain in the South longer if necessary. Mr. Sun Fo and Dr. Wang Chung-hui will confer with Mr. Hu Han-min. It is understood that their visit to Canton will depend on the outcome of the conference with Mr. Hu in Hong Kong.—Reuter.

can do on behalf of the Central Authorities.

The leaders here are, however, anxious to see Dr. Wang Chung-hui, who is acting as mediator, and to find out from him what is the real attitude of Marshal Chiang Kai-shek, Chairman of the Military Affairs Commission, who is the principal figure on the present political chessboard.

Each time Nanking officials come south, there is a considerable stir in propagandist circles. Nanking likely to cover the 1934 fixed bonds on the Shanghai market go up several points to the satisfaction of those who anticipate the rise.

Then the delegates return North and everything cools off again. Four members of the Kuomintang central committee who do not hold important posts here will attend the fifth Plenary Session in Nanking on December 10. These four members are Messrs. Tong Ching-yang, Chin Kuk-cho, Chui Kwong-shou, and Kwan Hui-yan. They attended all the previous sessions of the Kuomintang in Nanking.

LONDON'S FORECAST

Cotton:—We expect a slightly lower market in Cotton although the "spot" situation is tending to strengthen and pressure is light.

Grain:—Wheat is anticipated to open steadier in sympathy with Liverpool owing to unfavourable weather in Australia and the Argentine. The Corn Belt is cold enough to stimulate demand for feed. There have been further snow in the South West where moisture is needed.

Rubber:—Rubber is expected to open higher.

Wheat is anticipated to open steadier in sympathy with Liverpool, owing to unfavourable weather conditions in Australia and the Argentine. The corn-belt is cold enough to stimulate demand for seed. There have been further snows in the south-west, where moisture is needed.

Rubber is expected to open higher.

Cotton, the domestic trade is the chief buyer. There is no pressure to sell. Any improvement in outside demand would result in higher prices.
